

EXEMPLARY DAMAGES

PETER M. KELLY

KELLY, DURHAM & PITTARD, LLP
1005 Heights Boulevard
Houston, Texas 77008
Ph: 713.529.0048 Fax: 713.529.2498
pkelly@texasappeals.com
www.texasappeals.com

Presented in Dallas by:

THAD D. SPALDING

KELLY, DURHAM & PITTARD, LLP
P.O. Box 224626
Dallas, Texas 75222
Ph: 214.946.8000 Fax: 214.946.8433
tspalding@texasappeals.com

State Bar of Texas
30TH ANNUAL
ADVANCED PERSONAL INJURY LAW
COURSE
July 9 - 11, 2014 Dallas
August 6 – 8, 2014 San Antonio
August 27 – 29, 2014 Houston

CHAPTER 26

PETER M. KELLY

KELLY, DURHAM & PITTARD, L.L.P.
1005 Heights Boulevard • Houston Texas 77008
Telephone: 713.529.0048 • Facsimile: 713.529.2498
pkelly@texasappeals.com • www.texasappeals.com

Education

The University of Texas School of Law, J.D. 1990: Scholarly Publications Editor, Texas International Law Journal.

Harvard College of Harvard University, A.B. cum laude 1985: Departmental Honors in History.

Professional Activities, Memberships, and Admissions

Board Certified, Civil Appellate Law--Texas Board of Legal Specialization.

Texas Supreme Court Advisory Committee, Member 2011- .

Texas Trial Lawyers Association: Chair, Amicus Committee, and Member, Executive Committee, and Member, Board of Directors, 2003- .

Houston Trial Lawyers Association: President, 2013-14; President-Elect, 2012-13;
Secretary-Treasurer, 2011-12; Chair, Legislative Liaison Committee, 2010-2011;
Chair, Long Range Planning Committee, 2008-09.

Texas Monthly™ Super Lawyer, 2009-2013.

Texas Supreme Court Historical Society: Trustee 2011- ; Texas Bar Foundation: Life
Fellow; State Bar of Texas Appellate Section: Co-Author, Court of Appeals Appellate Procedure Update, Appellate Advocate (published quarterly by the Appellate Practice Section of the State Bar of Texas), Fall 1999-2004; Appellate Practice Section of the Houston Bar Association: Member; Council Member, 2003-2006; Member of Bar Association of the Fifth Federal Circuit; American Bar Association; American Association for Justice; University of Texas School of Law Dean's Roundtable.

Admitted to practice in the States of New York and Texas, the Southern, Northern, Eastern, and Western U.S. Districts of Texas, the Southern District of New York, and the Fifth Federal Circuit.

Frequent CLE speaker.

THAD D. SPALDING

KELLY, DURHAM & PITTARD, L.L.P.

P.O. Box 224626 | Dallas, Texas 75222

601 Haines Ave. | Dallas, Texas 75208

(214) 946-8000 | (214) 946-8433 (fax)

tspalding@texasappeals.com | www.texasappeals.com

After graduating from St. Mary's University School of Law in 1994, Thad D. Spalding was a member of the appellate sections of San Antonio firms Ball & Weed, P.C., and Prichard, Hawkins, McFarland & Young, LLP. Thad and his family moved to Dallas in 2001 where Thad helped start Hermes Sargent Bates, LLP's appellate section. In 2010, Thad joined The Law Offices of Marc H. Richman, where he continued to handle appeals and litigation support, along with a trial docket of complex personal injury, commercial, and family law cases, and in 2013, Thad joined Kelly, Durham & Pittard, LLP,

Throughout his career, Thad has served as lead counsel on numerous appeals, has successfully argued cases before many of the intermediate courts of appeals, the Texas Supreme Court, and the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, and has assisted trial counsel by briefing and arguing complex motions for summary judgment, jurisdictional objections, expert witness challenges, jury charges, and post-trial motions throughout Texas in both state and federal courts.

Thad has been Board Certified in Civil Appellate Law by the Texas Board of Legal Specialization since 1999, and, since 2002, has been an active member of the State Bar of Texas Committee on Pattern Jury Charges - General Negligence and Intentional Personal Torts. He was recognized by Thomson Reuters in Texas Monthly as a "Texas Rising Star" in 2004 and then a "Super Lawyer" from 2004-2008, by ALM and Law.com in 2012 as a Texas "Top Rated Lawyer" in the Appellate category, and by D Magazine as a "Best Lawyer in Dallas" in the Appellate category from 2011-2014. Thad is also rated AV Preeminent, the highest possible rating in both legal ability and ethical standards, by Martindale-Hubbell.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I.	INTRODUCTION.....	1
II.	PLEADING FOR PUNITIVE DAMAGES.....	1
	A. Pleading a Claim for Punitive Damages.....	1
	B. Pleading the Statutory Cap on Punitive Damages.....	1
	C. Pleading a Due Process Challenge to Punitive Damages.....	2
	D. Pleading Cap-Busting Theories.....	2
	E. Pleading for Bifurcation.....	2
	1. Bifurcation in Federal Court.....	3
III.	NET WORTH DISCOVERY.....	3
	A. “Net Worth” Defined.....	4
	B. Relevant Time Period – Current Net Worth.....	4
	C. Scope of Net Worth Discovery.....	4
IV.	PROVING PUNITIVE LIABILITY.....	5
	A. Gross Negligence.....	5
	B. Evidence of “Some Care” Will Not Preclude a Finding of Gross Negligence.....	6
	C. Malice.....	6
	D. Fraud.....	6
	E. Clear and Convincing Evidence Standard.....	7
	F. Unanimity.....	7
	G. Cap-Busting Theories.....	8
	H. Corporate Liability for Punitive Damages.....	8
	I. A Corporation is Not Liable for the Criminal Act of Another in Certain Cases.....	8
	J. Compliance With Federal Regulations Does Not Preclude Punitive Liability.....	9
	K. Statutory Liability for Punitive Damages.....	9
V.	UNIQUE CIRCUMSTANCES AND PUNITIVE DAMAGES.....	10
	A. Negligent Hiring/Entrustment.....	10
	1. The Benefits of Pleading for Punitive Damages.....	10
	2. Proving Punitive Liability for Negligent Hiring/Entrustment.....	10
	B. Breach of Fiduciary Duty.....	10
	C. Breach of Contract.....	11
	D. Punitive Damages by Default?.....	11
	E. Gross Negligence in Workers’ Compensation Subscriber Cases.....	11
	F. Punitive Damages in Family Law Cases.....	12
	G. Punitive Damages Not Available in Some Statutory Causes of Action.....	12
VI.	PROVING EXEMPLARY DAMAGES.....	12
	A. Compensatory Damages as a Prerequisite.....	12
	B. Chapter 41/ Kraus Factors.....	12
	1. Attorney’s fees? Yes.....	13
	2. Intended Use of the Punitive Damage Award? No.....	13
	C. The Statutory Cap and Cap-Busting Theories.....	13
	1. Burden of Proof?.....	13
	2. Unanimity?.....	14
	D. Constitutional Due Process Limitations on Punitive Damages.....	14
	1. Degree of Reprehensibility.....	14
	2. Ratio Between the Actual or Potential Harm and Punitive Damages.....	15
	3. Comparable Penalties.....	15
VII.	THE JURY CHARGE.....	15
	A. Jury Instructions.....	15
	1. Other Instructions Required?.....	15

- B. Unanimity and the Clear and Convincing Evidence Standard..... 16
- VIII. REVIEW OF PUNITIVE LIABILITY/DAMAGE AWARDS ON APPEAL..... 17
  - A. Section 41.013 Requires a Detailed Review of the Evidence..... 17
  - B. Clear and Convincing Evidence Standard on Appeal..... 18
    - 1. Legal sufficiency..... 18
    - 2. Factual Sufficiency..... 18
    - 3. Summary Judgment Standard..... 18
  - C. A Successful Constitutional Challenge Can Only be Remedied by Remittitur..... 18
- IX. MISCELLANEOUS ISSUES..... 19
  - A. Insurability of Punitive Damages..... 19
  - B. Release of Liability..... 20
- TABLE A..... 21
- TABLE B..... 25

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

Alahmad v. Abukhdair , No. 02-12-00084-CV, 2014 WL 2538740 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth June 5, 2014, n.p.h.) .....	7
Alamo Nat’l Bank v. Kraus , 616 S.W.2d 908 (Tex. 1981).....	13
American Int’l Specialty Ins. Co. v. Res-Care Inc. , 529 F.3d 649 (5 th Cir. 2008) .....	20
Archer v. Griffith , 390 S.W.2d 735 (Tex. 1964).....	6
Arkoma Basin Expl. Co. v. FMF Assocs. 1990-A, Ltd. , 249 S.W.3d 380 (Tex. 2008) .....	19
Atchison, Topeka &amp; Santa Fe Ry. v. Cruz , 9 S.W.3d 173 (Tex. App.—El Paso 1999) , pet. granted, judgm’t vacated, and remanded by agr. , 44 Tex. Sup. Ct. J. 196 (Dec. 21, 2000).....	13
Bank of America, N.A. v. Barth , No. 13-08-00612-CV, 2013 WL 5676024 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi Oct. 17, 2013, no pet.) .....	17
Barnett v. Barnett , 67 S.W.3d 107 (Tex. 2001) .....	6
Bennett v. Howard , 170 S.W.2d 709 (Tex. 1943).....	7, 8, 14, 15
BMW of N. Am., Inc. v. Gore , 517 U.S. 559 (1996).....	14
Boerjan v. Rodriguez , No. 12-0838 (Tex. June 27, 2014) .....	5
Brosseau v. Ranzau , 81 S.W.3d 381 (Tex. App.—Beaumont 2002, pet. denied).....	11
Bryant v. Adair , 490 S.W.2d 950 (Tex. Civ. App.—Eastland 1973, writ ref’d n.r.e.).....	5
Burk Royalty Co. v. Walls , 616 S.W.2d 911 (Tex. 1981) .....	6
Burleson State Bank v. Plunkett , 27 S.W.3d 605 (Tex. App.—Waco 2000, pet. denied).....	7
C.W. v. Zirius , No. SA-10-CV-1044-XR, 2012 WL 4324442 (W.D. Tex. Sept. 20, 2012) .....	3
Citizens Nat’l Bank v. Allen Rae Invs., Inc. , 142 S.W.3d 459 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2004, no pet.).....	7
City of Fort Worth v. Zimlich , 975 S.W.2d 399 (Tex. App.—Austin 1998), rev’d on other grounds , 29 S.W.3d 62 (Tex. 2000).....	3, 17
City of Keller v. Wilson , 168 S.W.3d 802 (Tex. 2005) .....	18
City of Waco v. Kirwan , 298 S.W.3d 618 (Tex. 2009) .....	6
Coastal Oil &amp; Gas Corp. v. Garza Energy Trust , 268 S.W.3d 1 (Tex. 2008).....	13
Columbia Med. Ctr. of Las Colinas, Inc. v. Hogue , 271 S.W.3d 238 (Tex. 2008).....	18
Cullum v. White , 399 S.W.3d 173 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2011, pet. denied).....	7, 16
Deatley v. Rodgriguez , 246 S.W.3d 848 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2008, no pet.) .....	7
Del Carmen Canas v. Centerpoint Energy Resources Corp. , 418 S.W.3d 312 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2013, no pet.) .....	20

Diamond Shamrock Refining Co. v. Hall , 168 S.W.3d 164 (Tex. 2005) .....	18
Diversified Gen. Partner, Inc. v. Rubio , 185 S.W.3d 842 (Tex. 2005).....	8
Drury Southwest, Inc. v. Louie Ledeaux No. 1, Inc. , No. 04-12-00837-CV, ___ S.W.3d ___, 2013 WL 5812989 (Tex. App.—San Antonio Oct. 30, 2013, no pet. h.) .....	1, 7
Duncan v. Prescott , No. 07-12-00330-CV, 2013 WL 5614314 (Tex. App.—Amarillo Oct. 11, 2013, no pet.) (mem. op.) .....	19
Elete v. SEJ Properties, L.P. , No. 05-08-00445-CV, 2009 WL 2452942 (Tex. App.—Dallas Aug. 12, 2009, no pet.) (mem. op.) .....	19
Ellis County State Bank v. Kever , 936 S.W.2d 683 (Tex. App.—Dallas 1996, no writ).....	13
Estate of Arrington v. Fields , 578 S.W.2d 173 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1979, writ ref'd n.r.e.).....	10
Fairfield Ins. Co. v. Stephens Martin Paving, LP , 246 S.W.3d 653 (Tex. 2008) .....	19, 20
First Texas Sav. Ass'n v. Reliance Ins. Co. , 950 F.2d 1171 (5th Cir. 1992).....	3
Fisher v. Carrousel Motor Hotel, Inc. , 424 S.W.2d 627 (Tex. 1967).....	8
Flanary v. Mills , 150 S.W.3d 785 (Tex. App.—Austin 2004, pet. denied) .....	6
Forbes, Inc. v. Granada Biosciences, Inc. , 124 S.W.3d 167 (Tex. 2003) .....	18
Formosa Plastics Corp., USA v. Presidio Eng'rs &amp; Contractors, Inc. , 960 S.W.2d 41 (Tex. 1998).....	11
Fort Worth Elevators Co. v. Russell , 70 S.W.2d 397 (Tex. 1934).....	8
Gen. Motors Corp. v. Iracheta , 90 S.W.3d 725 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2002), rev'd on other grounds , 161 S.W.3d 462 (Tex. 2005).....	9
Gen. Motors Corp. v. Sanchez , 997 S.W.2d 584 (Tex. 1999).....	5, 6
Hall v. Diamond Shamrock Refining Co. , 82 S.W.3d 5 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2001), rev'd on other grounds , 168 S.W.3d 164 (Tex. 2005).....	12
Hall v. Lawlis , 907 S.W.2d 493 (Tex. 1995) .....	4
Hammerly Oaks, Inc. v. Edwards , 958 S.W.2d 387 (Tex. 1997).....	8
Hardy v. Bennefield , 368 S.W.3d 643 (Tex. App.—Tyler 2012, no pet.).....	18
Harless v. First Nat'l Bank , 169 W.Va. 673, 289 S.E.2d 692 (1982).....	6
HCRA of Texas, Inc. v. Johnson , 178 S.W.3d 861 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2005, no pet.) .....	13
Healthcare Centers of Texas, Inc. v. Rigby , 97 S.W.3d 610 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2002, pet. denied).....	8
Herbert v. Greater Gulf Coast Enters., Inc. , 915 S.W.2d 866 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1995, no pet.).....	11
Hernandez v. Sovereign Cherokee Nation Tejas , 343 S.W.3d 162 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2011, pet. denied) .....	19
Holt Atherton Indus., Inc. v. Heine , 835 S.W.2d 80 (Tex. 1992).....	11

Home Pro Constr. Co., Inc. v. Hoelscher Weatherstrip Mfg. Co. Inc. , No. H-11-4440, 2013 WL 6491189 (S.D. Tex. Dec. 10, 2013).....	3
Horizon/CMS Healthcare Corp. v. Auld , 985 S.W.2d 216 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 1999), rev'd on other grounds , 34 S.W.3d 887 (Tex. 2000).....	1
Huckabee v. Time Warner , 19 S.W.3d 413 (Tex. 2000).....	18
Humble Sand &amp; Gravel, Inc. v. Gomez , 146 S.W.3d 170 (Tex. 2004).....	8
In re Ameriplan Corp. , No. 05-09-01407-CV, 2010 WL 22825 (Tex. App.—Dallas Jan. 6, 2010, orig. proceeding) ..	4
In re Arnold , No. 13-12-00619-CV, 2012 WL 6085320 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi Nov. 30, 2012, orig. proceeding) ..	4
In re AWC Frac Valves Inc. , No. 09-13-00247-CV, 2013 WL 4314377 (Tex. App.—Beaumont Aug. 15, 2013, orig. proceeding).....	4
In re Beeson , 378 S.W.3d 8 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2011, orig. proceeding) .....	4, 5
In re Bradle , 83 S.W.3d 923 (Tex. App.—Austin 2002, orig. proceeding).....	3
In re Brewer Leasing, Inc. , 255 S.W.3d 708 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2008, orig. proceeding) .....	4
In re Columbia Med. Ctr. of Las Colinas , 306 S.W.3d 246 (Tex. 2010).....	1, 18
In re Garth , 214 S.W.3d 190 (Tex. App.—Beaumont 2007, orig. proceeding) .....	4
In re H.R.M. , 209 S.W.3d 105 (Tex. 2006).....	18
In re House of Yahweh , 266 S.W.3d 668 (Tex. App.—Eastland 2003, orig. proceeding).....	4
In re Islamorada Fish Co. Texas, L.L.C. , 319 S.W.3d 908 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2010, orig. proceeding).....	9
In re J.F.C. , 96 S.W.3d 256 (Tex. 2002) .....	18
In re J.O.A. , 283 S.W.3d 336 (Tex. 2009) .....	18
In re Jacobs , 300 S.W.3d 35 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2009, orig. proceeding) .....	3, 4, 5
In re Marriage of Notash , 118 S.W.3d 868 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 2003, no pet.).....	12
In re Shaw , No. 13-10-00487-CV, 2010 WL 4264796 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi Oct. 27, 2010, orig. proceeding) .	4
In re Voluntary Purchasing , No. Civ. 3:96-CV-1929-H, 2004 WL 86292 (N.D. Tex. Jan. 15, 2004).....	3
Ingraham v. U.S. , 808 F.2d 1075 (5 th Cir. 1987) .....	2
Jim Walter Homes, Inc. v. Reed , 711 S.W.2d 617 (Tex. 1986) .....	11
Joe N. Pratt Ins. v. Doane , No. V-07-07, 2010 WL 697285 (S.D. Tex. Feb. 19, 2010).....	11
Juliette Fowler Homes v. Welch Associates , 793 S.W.2d 660 (Tex. 1990).....	12
Khorshid, Inc. v. Christian , 257 S.W.3d 748 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2008, no pet.) .....	18, 19
Kia Motors Corp. v. Ruiz , 348 S.W.3d 465 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2011), rev'd on other grounds , No. 11-0709, ___ S.W.3d ___, 2014 WL 1258169 (Tex. March 28, 2014) .....	7

King v. McGruff , 234 S.W.2d 403 (Tex. 1950).....	8
Kroger Co. v. Elwood , 197 S.W.3d 793 (Tex. 2006).....	8
Lee Lewis Constr., Inc. v. Harrison , 70 S.W.3d 778 (Tex. 2001) .....	6
Lee v. Lee , 411 S.W.3d 95 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2013, no pet.) .....	17
Lesikar v. Rappeport , 33 S.W.3d 282 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 2000, pet. denied) .....	11
Lunsford v. Morris , 746 S.W.2d 471 (Tex. 1988).....	3
Madison v. Williamson , 241 S.W.3d 145 (Tex. App.—Houston [1 st Dist.] 2007, pet. denied) .....	1, 8, 13
Mahoney v. Ernst &amp; Young , 487 F. Supp. 2d 780 (S.D. Tex. 2006).....	3
Marin v. IESI TX Corp. , 317 S.W.3d 314 (Tex. App.—Houston [1 st Dist.] 2010, pet. denied) .....	2, 13
McDorman v. Texas-Cola Leasing Co. , 288 F.Supp.2d 796 (N.D. Tex. 2003).....	10
Miles v. Ford Motor Co. , 922 S.W.2d 572 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 1996), rev'd on other grounds , 967 S.W.2d 377 (Tex. 1998).....	8, 9
Miles v. Jerry Kidd Oil Co. , 363 S.W.3d 823 (Tex. App.—Tyler 2012, no pet.).....	8
Mission Resources, Inc. v. Garza Energy Trust , 166 S.W.3d 301 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi 2005), aff'd in part , rev'd in part on other grounds , Coastal Oil &amp; Gas Corp. v. Garza Energy Trust , 268 S.W.3d 1 (Tex. 2008) .....	13
Mobil Oil Corp. v. Ellender , 968 S.W.2d 917 (Tex. 1998).....	5, 18
Montgomery Ward &amp; Co. v. Marvin Riggs Co. , 584 S.W.2d 863 (Tex. Civ. App.—Austin 1979, writ ref'd n.r.e.) ...	10
Morris v. Cessna Aircraft Co. , 833 F. Supp. 2d 622 (N.D. Tex. 2011) .....	10
Murphy v. Am. Rice, Inc. , No. 01-03-01357-CV, 2007 WL 766016 (Tex. App.—Houston [1 st Dist.] Mar. 9, 2007, no pet.) .....	14
Myriad Dev., Inc. v. Alltech, Inc. , 817 F. Supp. 2d 946 (W.D. Tex. 2011) .....	6
Nabours v. Longview Sav. &amp; Loan Ass'n , 700 S.W.2d 901 (Tex. 1985).....	20
Nabours v. Longview Savings &amp; Loan Ass'n , 700 S.W.2d 901 (Tex. 1985) .....	12
O'Dell v. Wright , 320 S.W.3d 505 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2010, pet. denied).....	2
Ocean Carriers, Inc. v. Team Ocean Servs., Inc. , No. 12-13-00228-CV, 2014 WL 2505586 (Tex. App.—Tyler May 30, 2014, no pet. h.) .....	18
Osterberg v. Peca , 12 S.W.3d 31 (Tex. 2000).....	17
R.J. Suarez Enterprises, Inc. v. Pnyx L.P. , 380 S.W.3d 238 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2012, no pet.) .....	13
Ramco Oil &amp; Gas, Ltd. v. Anglo Dutch (Tenger) L.L.C. , 171 S.W.3d 905 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2005, no pet.) .....	4
Ramos v. Frito-Lay, Inc. , 784 S.W.2d 667 (Tex. 1990).....	8
Reed Tool Co. v. Copelin , 689 S.W.2d 404 (Tex. 1985).....	6

Rogers v. Blake , 240 S.W.2d 1001 (Tex. 1951).....	5
Rosell v. Central West Motor Stages, Inc. , 89 S.W.3d 643 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2002, pet. denied).....	10
Safeshred, Inc. v. Martinez , 365 S.W.3d 655 (Tex. 2012).....	6, 7, 15
SAS Assocs., Inc. v. Home Marketing Serv., Inc. , 168 S.W.3d 296 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2005, pet. denied).....	19
Schlueter v. Schlueter , 975 S.W.2d 584 (Tex. 1998).....	12
Sears, Roebuck &amp; Co. v. Ramirez , 824 S.W.2d 558 (Tex. 1992) .....	4
Seber v. Union Pac. R. Co. , 350 S.W.3d 640 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2011, no pet.) .....	6
Service Corp. Int’l v. Guerra , 348 S.W.3d 221 (Tex. 2011).....	13, 14
Signal Peak Enterprises of Texas, Inc. , 138 S.W.3d 915 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2004, pet. stricken) .....	2, 8
Soon Phat, L.P. v. Alvarado , 396 S.W.3d 78 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2013, pet. denied).....	3
Southland Corp. v. Burnett , 790 S.W.2d 828 (Tex. App.—El Paso 1990, no writ).....	4
State Farm Fir &amp; Cas. Co. , 896 F. Supp. 658 (E.D. Tex. 1995) .....	3
State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell , 538 U.S. 408 (2003) .....	14
State v. K.E.W. , 315 S.W.3d 16 (Tex. 2010).....	18
Steak &amp; Ale of Texas, Inc. v. Borneman , 62 S.W.3d 898 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2001, no pet.) .....	12
Sw. Bell Tel. Co. v. Davis , 852 S.W.2d 191 (Tex. Civ. App.—Waco 1979, no writ).....	10
Sw. Bell Telephone v. Garza , 164 S.W.3d 607 (Tex. 2004) .....	18
Techcraft, Inc. v. Van Houten , 709 S.W.2d 688 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1986, no writ). .....	13
Texas Comm’n on Human Rights v. Morrison , 346 S.W.3d 838 (Tex. App.—Austin 2011), rev’d on other grounds , 381 S.W.3d 533 (Tex. 2012).....	2
Texas Integrated Conveyor Sys. v. Innovative Conveyor Concepts, Inc. , 300 S.W.3d 348 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2009, pet. denied).....	6
THI of Texas at Lubbock I, LLC v. Perea , 329 S.W.3d 548 (Tex. App.—Amarillo 2010, pet. denied).....	1
Tony Gullo Motors I, L.P. v. Chapa , 212 S.W.3d 299 (Tex. 2006).....	11, 18, 19
Town Hall Estates–Whitney, Inc. v. Winters , 220 S.W.3d 71 (Tex. App.—Waco 2007, no pet.) .....	6
Transportation Ins. Co. v. Moriel , 879 S.W.2d 10 (Tex. 1994).....	2, 3, 6, 17
Van Voris v. Team Chop Shop, LLC , 402 S.W.3d 915 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2013, no pet.).....	12, 20
Wackenhut Corrs. Corp. v. de la Rosa , 305 S.W.3d 594 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi 2009, no pet.) .....	1, 15
Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Alexander , 868 S.W.3d 322 (Tex. 1993).....	4, 5
Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Sturges , 52 S.W.3d 711 (Tex. 2001) .....	17

Webster v. Carson , 609 S.W.2d 850 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1980, no writ) .....	10
Webster v. Johnson , 737 S.W.2d 884 (Tex. App.—Houston [1 st Dist.] 1987, writ denied) .....	2
Williams v. Steves Indus., Inc. , 699 S.W.2d 570 (Tex. 1985) .....	10
Wilson v. K.W.G., Inc. , No. 11-03-00084-CV, 2004 WL 1925599 (Tex. App.—Eastland Aug. 31, 2004, no pet.) .....	9
Wright v. Gafford-Hill &amp; Co. , 725 S.W.2d 712 (Tex. 1987) .....	8, 11
Yeckel v. Abbott , No. 03-04-00713, 2009 WL 1563587 (Tex. App.—Austin June 4, 2009, pet. denied) (mem. op.)..	11
Zorrilla v. AYPACO Constr. II, LLC , 421 S.W.3d 54 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi-Edinburg 2013, pet. filed).....	1

Statutes

TEX. ALCO. BEV. CODE § 2.02(b)(2) .....	12
TEX. ALCO. BEV. CODE § 2.03(c) .....	12
TEX. BUS. & COM. CODE § 15.05 .....	10
TEX. BUS. & COM. CODE § 15.21 .....	10
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.001(6) .....	6
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.001(7) .....	5, 6
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.001(7)(B) .....	5
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.002(b) .....	10
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.003(a) .....	1, 14
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.003(a)(2), (3) .....	7, 18
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.003(b) .....	5
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.003(c) .....	1
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.004(a) .....	12
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.005(a) .....	8, 9
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.005(b) .....	9
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.005(c) .....	9
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.008(c) .....	2, 8, 11, 13
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.009(a) .....	3
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.009(c) .....	1, 3
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.010(b) .....	19
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.013 .....	17

TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE §41.003(d) .....	7
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE §41.008(b) .....	1
TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE §101.024.....	12
TEX. PENAL CODE §49.07 .....	13

Rules

FED. R. CIV. P. 48(b) .....	10
TEX. R. CIV. P. 243 .....	15
TEX. R. CIV. P. 226a.....	10, 23
TEX. R. CIV. P. 94 .....	3

Other Authorities

2 American Law Institute, Enterprise Responsibility for Personal Injury 101 (1991).....	9
Ashley W. Warren, Compliance with Governmental Regulatory Standards: Is It Enough to Immunize a Defendant from Tort Liability? , 49 BAYLOR LAW REV. 763 (1997).....	9
BLACK'S LAW DICTIONARY 1041 (6th ed. 1990).....	4
Christopher Scott D'Angelo, Effect of Compliance or Noncompliance with Applicable Governmental Product Safety Regulations on a Determination of Product Defect , 36 SO. TEX. LAW REV. 453, 467-68 (1995).....	9
McDonald & Carlson Texas Civil Practice §9.48 (2d ed.) .....	2
R. Michael Northrup & Melinda R. Newman, In Search of Consensus on "Net Worth," 22 APP. ADVOC. 235 (2010) .....	4
RESTATEMENT (SECOND) OF TORTS § 909 .....	8

EXEMPLARY DAMAGES<sup>1</sup>

I. INTRODUCTION.

Punitive damages are difficult to obtain and even more difficult to hold onto on appeal. Since 2003, when the Texas Legislature imposed a “clear and convincing evidence” standard to a claim for punitive damages, and then in 2005, when the Texas Legislature added the unanimity hurdle to such claims, punitive damage awards are frequently reversed, either because the evidence of punitive liability [Table A] (whether that be gross negligence, fraud, or malice) is not sufficient to support the claim, or because the damages awarded are excessive, in violation of the Texas statutory cap or the due process clause of the Texas and U.S. Constitutions [Table B].<sup>2</sup> And, as hard as such claims are to hold onto on appeal, they can be equally difficult to get to the jury. In the process of doing so, there are a number of potential issues that one should be aware of, whether pursuing or defending such a claim. This paper will attempt to summarize some of the more unsettled areas, as well as some interesting situations that can arise on the way to recovering such damages.

II. PLEADING FOR PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

Everything starts with the pleadings. Aside from the most basic requirement that a plaintiff give a defendant fair notice that party will claim, attempt to prove, and ultimately recover punitive damages from a defendant, there are a few other benefits to pleading a claim for punitive damages.

A. Pleading a Claim for Punitive Damages.

A pleading for punitive damages under the common law requires that the harm result from (1) fraud, (2) malice, or (3) gross negligence. TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.003(a). If the claim relies on a statute authorizing punitive damages, “in specified circumstances or in conjunction with a specified culpable mental state,” then the conduct must satisfy that statutory standard and requirement. TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.003(c).

B. Pleading the Statutory Cap on Punitive Damages.

Chapter 41 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code provides a limit on the amount of punitive damages that can be awarded against a defendant:

Exemplary damages against a defendant may not exceed an amount equal to the greater of:

- 1) (A) two times the amount of economic damages; plus
(B) an amount equal to any noneconomic damages found by the jury, not to exceed $750,000; or
- 2) $200,000.

TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE §41.008(b).

There is a split—albeit a lopsided one—in authority as to whether this statutory cap on punitive damages must be pled. The bulk of the cases to have addressed this issue hold that the statutory cap on exemplary damages is an affirmative defense that must be specifically pled or it is waived. See Zorrilla v. AYPSCO Constr. II, LLC, 421 S.W.3d 54, 67-68 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi-Edinburg 2013, pet. filed) (citing Wackenhut Corrs. Corp. v. de la Rosa, 305 S.W.3d 594, 653-55 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi 2009, no pet.); see also Drury Southwest, Inc. v. Louie Ledeaux No. 1, Inc., No. 04-12-00837-CV, ___ S.W.3d ___, 2013 WL 5812989 *9 (Tex. App.—San Antonio Oct. 30, 2013, no pet. h.); Horizon/CMS Healthcare Corp. v. Auld, 985 S.W.2d 216, 233 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 1999), rev'd on other grounds, 34 S.W.3d 887 (Tex. 2000). The Amarillo Court of Appeals, to date, is the one court that holds otherwise. See THI of Texas at Lubbock I, LLC v. Perea, 329 S.W.3d 548, 588 (Tex. App.—Amarillo 2010, pet. denied) (finding that statutory cap is not an affirmative defense and must be applied as a matter of law).

The confusion may stem from the Texas Supreme Court’s vague note in In re Columbia Med. Ctr. of Las Colinas that the statute capping punitive damages requires a reduction as a matter of law “when the parties raise the issue.” In re Columbia Med. Ctr. of Las Colinas, 306 S.W.3d 246, 248 (Tex. 2010). The supreme court, however, did not specify when the statutory cap must be “raised.”

Other considerations indicate that requiring the cap to be specifically pled is correct. First, when the statutory cap is pled, a plaintiff may prove a cap-busting provision as a counter-affirmative defense. TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.009(c); Zorrilla, 421 S.W.3d at 67; Wackenhut, 305 S.W.3d at 652-55. To successfully prove a cap-busting provision, a plaintiff would necessarily have to offer evidence and obtain a jury finding in support of such a counter-affirmative defense. Madison v. Williamson, 241 S.W.3d 145, 161 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2007, pet. denied); Signal Peak Enterps. of Texas, Inc., 138 S.W.3d 915, 927 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2004, no pet.). However, if a plaintiff has no notice that the statutory cap is going to be asserted, the plaintiff never has the opportunity to prove and obtain findings on a cap-busting provision. Practically speaking, if the statutory cap is never pled, the plaintiff has no reason to investigate, plead and prove a cap-busting theory. Treating the cap as an affirmative defense that must be pled provides notice that the cap will be relied upon and the opportunity to plead and prove an exception to it.

<sup>1</sup> Thanks to Kristi Lassiter, legal assistant and avid Mississippi State alumnus, for her assistance in assembling and finalizing the tables of contents and authorities.

<sup>2</sup> Thanks also to Jessica Foster, law student at Texas A&M University School of Law, for her help in compiling these tables.

Further, other statutes that provide caps on damages in employment cases and medical malpractice cases are treated the same way. See O'Dell v. Wright, 320 S.W.3d 505, 515-16 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2010, pet. denied) (Labor Code section 21.2585, which provides caps on compensatory and punitive damages in employment cases, must be pled and proved); Texas Comm'n on Human Rights v. Morrison, 346 S.W.3d 838, 848, 850 (Tex. App.—Austin 2011) (same), rev'd on other grounds, 381 S.W.3d 533 (Tex. 2012); Ingraham v. U.S., 808 F.2d 1075, 1079-80 (5th Cir. 1987) (applying Texas law, and holding that Texas's statutory limit on medical malpractice damages is an affirmative defense which must be pleaded timely or it is waived); Webster v. Johnson, 737 S.W.2d 884, 889 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1987, writ denied); see also McDonald & Carlson, TEXAS CIVIL PRACTICE §9.48 (2d ed.) (noting damages capped by statute is an affirmative defense that must be pleaded and proved). Certainly, the issue remains somewhat unsettled. But, until resolved, the safest course is to plead the statutory cap when confronted with a claim for punitive damages.

C. Pleading a Due Process Challenge to Punitive Damages.

A party may also challenge the amount of punitive damages as violating its due process rights under the Texas and U.S. Constitutions. See Section VI(D), below. It is unclear, however, whether such a challenge must be pled.

Although there are no cases specifically addressing the issue, there are similarities that can be drawn between the statutory cap and the constitutional defense to punitive damages. Like the statutory cap, the constitutional challenge should be viewed as an affirmative defense to the punitive damage claim—i.e., a “matter constituting an avoidance” as envisioned by Texas Rule of Civil Procedure 94—and as such pled. On the other hand, it is largely the actual amount of the punitive damage award, in relation to the award of actual damages, that triggers the claim of a due process violation. So, it would also seem reasonable to conclude that a due process violation cannot arise until after verdict. Moreover, the authors have not found any authority that supports the waiver of a due process violation claim under the circumstances based solely on a failure to plead. To the contrary, a number of the cases that have found a waiver of the statutory cap based on the failure to plead have nonetheless gone on to consider a due process attack on the punitive damage award, presumably without it having been pled either. But, again, until resolved, the safer course is to plead even a potential violation of the defendant's due process rights.

D. Pleading Cap-Busting Theories.

Section 41.008(c) provides certain “cap-busting” theories that, if alleged and proven, exempt a punitive damage award from subsection (b)'s limitations. Specifically, § 41.008 “does not apply to a cause of action against a defendant from whom a plaintiff seeks recovery of exemplary damages based on conduct described as a felony in [certain enumerated] sections of the Penal Code if, except for § 49.07 [intoxication assault] and 49.08 [intoxication manslaughter], the conduct was committed knowingly or intentionally.” TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.008(c); see also Section IV(G), below.

Again, however, the law is unclear, as to whether these “cap-busting” theories must be specifically pled. The only case to address this issue, Marin v. IESI Tex. Corp., 317 S.W.3d 314 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2010, pet. denied), sidestepped the issue. In Marin, the court expressly refused “to create a new pleading requirement in exemplary damage cases” with regard to a cap-busting theory, but at the same time found that the pleadings were sufficient to give the defendant fair notice, which included “allegations of conduct to which the cap does not apply, which necessarily alerted [the defendant] of [the plaintiff's] intent to exceed the damages cap.” Marin, 317 S.W.3d at 333.

E. Pleading for Bifurcation.

To protect defendants from having net worth evidence adversely impact the jury's determination of punitive liability, the Texas Supreme Court, in Transportation Ins. Co. v. Moriel, 879 S.W.2d 10, (Tex. 1994), determined that—if presented with a timely motion—a trial court should bifurcate the determination of the amount of punitive damages from the liability phase of the trial. Id. at 30.

Under this approach, the jury first hears evidence relevant to liability for actual damages, the amount of actual damages, and liability for punitive damages (e.g., gross negligence), and then returns findings on these issues. If the jury answers the punitive damage liability question in the plaintiff's favor, the same jury is then presented evidence relevant only to the amount of punitive damages, and determines the proper amount of punitive damages, considering the totality of the evidence presented at both phases of the trial.

Id. This approach was subsequently codified in Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code § 41.009, which requires bifurcation on motion filed by a defendant “prior to voir dire examination of the jury or at a time specified by pretrial court order issued under Rule 166, Texas Rules of Civil Procedure.” TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.009(a).

“If exemplary damages is established in the first phase of a bifurcated trial, the trier of fact shall, in the second phase of the trial, determine the amount of exemplary damages to be awarded, if any.”

TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.009(c). The same jury must hear both phases of the bifurcated trial. Moriel, 879 S.W.2d at 30; In re Bradle, 83 S.W.3d 923, 928-29 (Tex. App.—Austin 2002, orig. proceeding) (“A jury assessing the amount of punitive damages must necessarily know of and consider the severity of the wrongdoing and the extent of actual damages.”).<sup>3</sup>

1. Bifurcation in Federal Court.

In a federal, diversity case, courts treat Chapter 41’s bifurcation procedure as just that—procedural, not substantive—and do not give it the automatic recognition given in state court. See C.W. v. Zirius, No. SA-10-CV-1044-XR, 2012 WL 4324442 *1 (W.D. Tex. Sept. 20, 2012) (noting that bifurcation of trial is primarily procedural and federal procedural law controls); but see State Farm Fir & Cas. Co., 896 F. Supp. 658, 659-660 (E.D. Tex. 1995) (acknowledges, but does not decide, whether Texas law and statute mandating bifurcation if requested is procedural or substantive law). Rather, in federal court—even in diversity cases—it appears that bifurcation is controlled by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 42 and is discretionary with the court. See First Texas Sav. Ass’n v. Reliance Ins. Co., 950 F.2d 1171, 1174 (5th Cir. 1992) (motion to bifurcate is a matter within the sole discretion of the court); Mahoney v. Ernst & Young, 487 F. Supp. 2d 780 (S.D. Tex. 2006) (denying motion to bifurcate under Rule 42); see also Home Pro Constr. Co., Inc. v. Hoelscher Weatherstrip Mfg. Co. Inc., No. H-11-4440, 2013 WL 6491189 *13 (S.D.

Tex. Dec. 10, 2013) (denying bifurcation); In re Voluntary Purchasing, No. Civ. 3:96-CV-1929-H, 2004 WL 86292 *1-2 (N.D. Tex. Jan. 15, 2004) (decision to bifurcation within sole discretion of judge).

III. NET WORTH DISCOVERY.

Pleading for punitive damages also entitles the plaintiff to discover the defendant’s net worth. Lunsford v. Morris, 746 S.W.2d 471 (Tex. 1988). Evidence of net worth is relevant to determining the amount of punitive damages because “the amount of punitive damages necessary to punish and deter wrongful conduct depends on the financial strength of the defendant. ‘That which could be an enormous penalty to one may be but a mere annoyance to another.’” Soon Phat, L.P. v. Alvarado, 396 S.W.3d 78, 109 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2013, pet. denied).<sup>4</sup>

No threshold evidentiary showing is necessary before a plaintiff is entitled to the discovery of net worth, although it has been suggested that some threshold requirement be imposed. See In re Jacobs, 300 S.W.3d 35, 52 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2009, orig. proceeding) (Sullivan, J., concurring). Justice Raul Gonzalez explained the policy considerations behind requiring such a showing in a dissenting opinion:

Finally, another problem with unlimited discovery of financial information is the potential for abuse. If all that is required for discovery of sensitive, private, and confidential financial information in tort actions is the mere assertion of gross negligence in a pleading, needless abuse and harassment could result. I suggest that a plaintiff be required to demonstrate a factual basis for its punitive-damage claim before this type of sensitive information is allowed to be discovered. At least twelve jurisdictions now follow this approach, and it is also urged by the American College of Trial Lawyers. Otherwise, this information will be discoverable in every garden-variety fender bender case.

<sup>3</sup> The authors’ own experience indicates that this bifurcation option is becoming less frequently utilized, presumably because any benefit of avoiding net worth evidence during the first, liability phase, may be outweighed by the risk that a jury finds liability for punitive damages and then looks to punish the defendant in the only way it can, with actual damages, not knowing there is to be a subsequent phase of the trial specifically designed to dole out punishment.

<sup>4</sup> Net worth is not a necessary element of punitive damages—i.e., the absence of evidence of net worth is not fatal to an award of punitive damages. See Soon Phat, L.P., 396 S.W.3d at 109. Rather, net worth is merely a relevant issue to such a claim—“as relevant to the defendant to prove a low net worth as it is to the plaintiff to prove the defendant’s high net worth.” Id.; see also City of Fort Worth v. Zimlich, 975 S.W.2d 399, 411 (Tex. App.—Austin 1998), rev’d on other grounds, 29 S.W.3d 62 (Tex. 2000).

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Alexander, 868 S.W.3d 322, 331-32 (Tex. 1993) (Gonzalez, J., dissenting) (footnotes omitted). Despite this concern, the defendant's net worth remains discoverable in Texas without any sort of threshold showing. Pleadings are sufficient. See In re Jacobs, 300 S.W.3d 35, 40-41 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2009, orig. proceeding); see also In re Shaw, No. 13-10-00487-CV, 2010 WL 4264796 *2 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi Oct. 27, 2010, orig. proceeding).

A. “Net Worth” Defined.

Chapter 41 does not define “net worth.” At least one case, however, has looked to cases in the supersedeas bond context and to Black's Law Dictionary to define it simply as “the difference between total assets and liabilities determined in accordance with GAAP.” See In re Jacobs, 300 S.W.3d at 46 n.11 (citing Ramco Oil & Gas, Ltd. v. Anglo Dutch (Tenger) L.L.C., 171 S.W.3d 905, 914 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2005, no pet.), and BLACK'S LAW DICTIONARY 1041 (6th ed. 1990)).

In Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Alexander, however, Justice Gonzalez warned that “[a] rule which limits admissibility only to assets minus liabilities may exclude relevant evidence and impede the goal of determining the true wealth of a defendant.” Id., 868 S.W.2d at 330 (Gonzalez, J., concurring).

Not all financial information relating to a defendant will be relevant to its net worth. A corporate defendant's assets are irrelevant in determining its wealth until its liabilities are subtracted. Similarly, a company's gross sales are only remotely related to its wealth until the company's expenses are subtracted. In order to avoid prejudice, parties should not be allowed to tell only part of the story. Only evidence which allows the jury to assess the wealth of the defendant without requiring the jury to make calculations should withstand review under Rule 403. Under this standard, gross sales would be clearly inadmissible.

Id. at 331. Justice Gonzalez, therefore, suggested that the supreme court “hold that the only evidence which is admissible at trial on the issue of net worth is the net income of the defendant and the defendant's capital—its assets minus its liabilities.” Id. So, while gross sales and receipts should not be admissible by themselves, see Southland Corp. v. Burnett, 790 S.W.2d 828, 830 (Tex. App.—El Paso 1990, no writ), it remains unclear the extent which a defendant's financial information is relevant and discoverable to show “net worth.” See, e.g., Anthony F. Arguijo, Note, Worth Another Look: Net-Worth Discovery Standards in Texas, 89 TEX. L. REV. 1433 (2011); R. Michael Northrup & Melinda R. Newman, In Search of Consensus on “Net Worth,” 22 APP. ADVOC. 235 (2010).

B. Relevant Time Period – Current Net Worth.

Only the defendant's “current net worth” is relevant. In re Jacobs, 300 S.W.3d at 44-45; see also In re Arnold, No. 13-12-00619-CV, 2012 WL 6085320 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi Nov. 30, 2012, orig. proceeding) (mem. op.) (net worth at time of injury not discoverable); In re AWC Frac Valves Inc., No. 09-13-00247-CV, 2013 WL 4314377 *5 (Tex. App.—Beaumont Aug. 15, 2013, orig. proceeding) (mem. op.); In re House of Yahweh, 266 S.W.3d 668, 673 (Tex. App.—Eastland 2003, orig. proceeding); In re Brewer Leasing, Inc., 255 S.W.3d 708, 712 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2008, orig. proceeding); In re Garth, 214 S.W.3d 190, 194 (Tex. App.—Beaumont 2007, orig. proceeding). As the court in In re Jacobs explained,

By “current,” we mean as of the time the discovery is responded to, though net-worth information should be updated through supplementation—as should the information in any discovery response—if it changes materially between the service of the discovery response and the time of trial.

In re Jacobs, 300 S.W.3d at 45, n. 9 (where plaintiff sought five years' worth of the defendant's net worth information, and the trial court limited the discovery to two years, the court of appeals implied that even two years was too broad, since only current net worth was relevant); In re Ameriplan Corp., No. 05-09-01407-CV, 2010 WL 22825 *1 (Tex. App.—Dallas Jan. 6, 2010, orig. proceeding) (mem. op.).

C. Scope of Net Worth Discovery.

Not all financial evidence is discoverable. “Discovery of certain types of financial information raises privacy concerns.” Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Alexander, 868 S.W.2d 322, 331 (Tex. 1993). Tax returns are treated differently because they “are considered private and the protection of that privacy is of constitutional importance.” In re Beeson, 378 S.W.3d 8, 12 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2011, orig. proceeding). The Texas Supreme Court has expressed reluctance to allow uncontrolled and unnecessary discovery of federal income tax returns. See Hall v. Lawlis, 907 S.W.2d 493, 494-95 (Tex. 1995); Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Ramirez, 824 S.W.2d 558, 559 (Tex. 1992) (mandamus issued to protect tax returns from discovery where corporation had already provided certified and annual reports); see also Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 868 S.W.2d at 331 (“this Court has recognized that there should not be uncontrolled and unnecessary discovery of federal income tax returns.”). So, tax returns are generally not discoverable where the same information can be obtained from another source—e.g., sworn (maybe audited) financial statements—or is duplicative of information already provided. See In re Beeson, 378 S.W.3d at 12.

Also, a defendant is not required to create evidence demonstrating its net worth. In re Jacobs, 300 S.W.3d at 46-47 (noting as “well-settled that a party cannot be forced to create documents that do not exist for the sole purpose of complying with a request for production.”). In In re Jacobs, for instance, the court of appeals refused to require the defendants to comply with a discovery order mandating that they create an affidavit in the form of what would have been provided to a lender to demonstrate the defendant’s net worth. Id. at 47.

IV. PROVING PUNITIVE LIABILITY.

A. Gross Negligence.

To support an allegation of “gross negligence,” a plaintiff must prove, by clear and convincing evidence, an act or omission:

- 1) which when viewed objectively from the standpoint of the defendant at the time of its occurrence involves an extreme degree of risk, considering the probability and magnitude of the potential harm to others; and
- 2) of which the defendant has actual, subjective awareness of the risk involved, but nevertheless proceeds with conscious indifference to the rights, safety, or welfare of others.

See TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.001(7)(B). Evidence of ordinary negligence is not sufficient to satisfy either the subjective or objective prong of this definition. See TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.003(b); see also Gen. Motors Corp. v. Sanchez, 997 S.W.2d 584, 595 (Tex. 1999); Mobil Oil Corp. v. Ellender, 968 S.W.2d 917, 921 (Tex. 1998).

Gross negligence is made up of two components—an objective component and a subjective one. The objective, “extreme risk” component means that the actor has intentionally done an act of an unreasonable character in disregard of a known or obvious risk that was so great as to make it highly probable that harm would follow. See Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Alexander, 868 S.W.2d 322, 326 (Tex. 1993). For one recent example, the Texas Supreme Court implied that a high speed car chase over unlit roads would be conduct that would, objectively create an extreme risk of harm to the decedent. See Boerjan v. Rodriguez, No. 12-0838 (Tex. June 27, 2014). The summary judgment evidence, the court held, did not permit such an inference, leaving the court with nothing more than evidence that the defendant simply followed a trespasser’s truck in his own vehicle, conduct the court concluded was “a far cry from the sort of objective risk that would give rise to gross negligence.” Id. at 7.

The subjective component must be accompanied by a conscious indifference to the consequences. See id. Thus, “[t]he subjective element requires proof that the defendant knew about the danger, but its acts or omissions demonstrate that it did not care.” Sanchez, 997 S.W.2d at 596. Because of this conscious indifference component, gross negligence should not be the result of momentary thoughtlessness, inadvertence, or error of judgment. Alexander, 868 S.W.2d at 326. There must be something in the nature of a continued or persistent course of action. Rogers v. Blake, 240 S.W.2d 1001, 1004 (Tex. 1951).

For instance, a conscious violation of the law requiring one to stop at a stop sign does not, without more, constitute gross negligence. Id.; see also Bryant v. Adair, 490 S.W.2d 950, 952 (Tex. Civ. App.—Eastland 1973, writ ref’d n.r.e.) (instructed verdict on gross negligence proper where there was no probative evidence that driver consciously drove his vehicle through stop sign, realized danger in what he was doing, or even knew he was approaching a stop sign).

In Rogers, the Texas Supreme Court refused to find that the defendant’s failure to stop at a stop sign, even though the evidence showed that he knew of the stop sign, did not rise to the level of gross negligence. Rogers, 240 S.W.2d at 376, 378-79. The court noted that “it is now settled law of this state that momentary thoughtlessness, inadvertence, or error of judgment do not constitute ‘heedlessness or reckless disregard of the rights of others’ within the meaning of this statute; there must be something in the nature of a continued or persistent course of action; such acts as to constitute wanton misconduct or gross negligence.” Id. at 377-78.

We think the fallacy of petitioner’s reasoning is that she contends a conscious failure to stop at the stop sign; i.e., a conscious violation of the law requiring one to stop at the stop sign, constitutes gross negligence on the part of the respondent, whereas the law is that there must be a ‘heedless and reckless disregard of the rights of others’, which a conscious failure to stop, standing alone, does not show.

Id. at 378.

B. Evidence of “Some Care” Will Not Preclude a Finding of Gross Negligence.

Burk Royalty addressed the “some care” test, which actually shifted the burden, in a gross negligence case, to the plaintiff to negate the existence of “some care” in order to prevail on its gross negligence. See Burk Royalty Co. v. Walls, 616 S.W.2d 911, 921 (Tex. 1981). The court rejected the “some care” test because it did not comport with the general “no evidence” or “legal insufficiency” review on appeal. Instead, the court held that where there is some evidence of “some care” and some evidence of “an entire want of care,” a jury finding of gross negligence will not be set aside on legal sufficiency grounds. See id.; see also City of Waco v. Kirwan, 298 S.W.3d 618, 627-28 (Tex. 2009) (reaffirming that “some evidence of care does not defeat a gross-negligence finding,” citing Lee Lewis Constr., Inc. v. Harrison, 70 S.W.3d 778, 785 (Tex. 2001); Sanchez, 997 S.W.2d at 595).

C. Malice.

The legislative definition of malice, for exemplary damage purposes, has evolved over the past two decades. The present definition, and the one that has existed since 2003, defines malice simply as a “specific intent by the defendant to cause substantial injury or harm to the claimant.” TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.001(7).

The specific intent required to prove actual malice means that the actor desires to cause the consequences of his act, or that he believes the consequences are substantially certain to result from it. Seber v. Union Pac. R. Co., 350 S.W.3d 640, 654 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2011, no pet.) (citing Reed Tool Co. v. Copelin, 689 S.W.2d 404, 406 (Tex. 1985)). Exemplary damages are not permitted for implied malice. Myriad Dev., Inc. v. Alltech, Inc., 817 F. Supp. 2d 946, 980 (W.D. Tex. 2011).

One issue that can arise with regard to malice is in cases in which malice is part of the underlying liability theory. So, for instance, in the context of retaliatory discharge, or Sabine Pilot case, a malice finding must require more than the defendant’s mere intent to fire the plaintiff, or else every Sabine Pilot case would warrant punitive damages. See Safeshred, Inc. v. Martinez, 365 S.W.3d 655, 662 (Tex. 2012) (“when a tort requires willful harm as a necessary element of liability, that willfulness alone cannot also justify a punitive damage award” and “more is required”). Thus, in evaluating whether the defendant specifically intended to cause substantial injury to its employee, the “substantial injury” referred to the in charge must be something “independent and qualitatively different from the ... compensable harms associated with the [cause of action].” Id. (quoting Moriel, 878 S.W.2d at 19). By way of example, the court explained:

... this type of malice might exist “where the employer circulates false or malicious rumors about the employee before or after the discharge ... or actively interferes with the employee’s ability to find other employment.” Garza, 164 S.W.3d at 636 (O’Neill, J., concurring) (quoting Harless v. First Nat’l Bank, 169 W.Va. 673, 289 S.E.2d 692, 703 n. 19 (1982)); see also Town Hall Estates—Whitney, Inc. v. Winters, 220 S.W.3d 71, 89 (Tex. App.—Waco 2007, no pet.) (finding sufficient evidence of malice where nursing home made employee’s conduct look worse than it was before state nursing board, resulting in plaintiff’s two-year probation). Damage to the employee’s reputation or future employment prospects is a qualitatively different injury from the firing itself, and conscious indifference to a risk of that injury might warrant punitive damages.

Id. at 662-63. So, in a Sabine Pilot case, at least, the employer’s illegal directive to the employee cannot form the basis for the punitive damage award. Id. at 663. “Allowing punitive damages premised not on the actionable firing itself, but on the illegal conduct that might have occurred while the employment relationship was ongoing, would be an improper expansion of the cause of action.” Id. at 664.

D. Fraud.

“Fraud” is simply defined as “fraud other than constructive fraud.” TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE §41.001(6). “Actual fraud” typically involves dishonesty of purposes or intent to deceive. Flanary v. Mills, 150 S.W.3d 785, 795 (Tex. App.—Austin 2004, pet. denied) (citing Archer v. Griffith, 390 S.W.2d 735, 740 (Tex. 1964)). In the case of actual fraud, there must be fraudulent intent. Barnett v. Barnett, 67 S.W.3d 107, 126 (Tex. 2001).

In cases of “constructive fraud,” on the other hand, the actor’s intent is irrelevant as “constructive fraud” encompasses those breaches that the law condemns as fraudulent merely because they tend to deceive others, violate confidences, or cause injury to public interests. Texas Integrated Conveyor Sys. v. Innovative Conveyor Concepts, Inc., 300 S.W.3d 348, 366 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2009, pet. denied). “Constructive fraud” is the breach of a legal or equitable duty which the law declares fraudulent because it violates a fiduciary relationship. Id.

So, actual fraud is required to recover punitive damages. But, how is that submitted, particularly in cases in which your underlying theory of liability is fraud? And, frankly, can it?

Given the differing burdens of proof—“preponderance of the evidence” for ordinary liability versus “clear and convincing evidence” for punitive liability—a finding of common law fraud, in and of itself, will not support an award of exemplary damages. Rather, there must be a finding, by clear and convincing evidence, that fraud occurred. See Drury Southwest, Inc. v. Louie Ledeaux No. 1, Inc., No. 04-12-00837-CV, ___ S.W.3d ___, 2013 WL 5812989 *7 (Tex. App.—San Antonio Oct. 30, 2013, no pet. h.). This requires two separate submissions. See, e.g., Alahmad v. Abukhdair, No. 02-12-00084-CV, 2014 WL 2538740 *1 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth June 5, 2014, n.p.h.) (noting that after finding fraud by material misrepresentation and by material omission, jury found separately by clear and convincing evidence that harm resulted from intentional fraud, but also noting that there was no objection to the charge).

But, is simply asking the jury again—this time under a heightened burden of proof—if the defendant committed actual fraud enough? On the face of the statute, the answer would seem to be “yes.” And, at least one court of appeals seems to acknowledge that “the same evidence that supports the jury’s actual fraud finding against [the defendant] would support its decision to award exemplary damages, as long as the evidence meets the elevated ‘clear and convincing’ standard.” Drury Southwest, Inc., 2013 WL 5812989 at *7.

There is an argument, however, that perhaps something more is required. The theories listed in § 41.003 upon which exemplary damages can be based—gross negligence, malice, and fraud—have been described as “aggravating circumstances.” See, e.g., Bennett v. Howard, 170 S.W.2d 709, 712 (Tex. 1943). If the theories listed in § 41.003(a) are the “aggravating circumstances” that allow for exemplary damages, can fraud be the aggravating circumstance if the underlying act is also fraud? The Texas Supreme Court stated in Safeshred (see Section IV(C), above), “when a tort requires willful harm as a necessary element of liability, that willfulness alone cannot also justify a punitive damages award.” Safeshred, Inc., 365 S.W.3d at 662. And, in Burleson State Bank v. Plunkett, 27 S.W.3d 605, 618 (Tex. App.—Waco 2000, pet. denied), the court of appeals said that “[t]o recover exemplary damages based upon a finding of common law fraud, [the plaintiff] must also establish that [the defendant] acted with malice.” Of course, Burleson State Bank does not stand for the converse either—that fraud cannot be the aggravating circumstance to support exemplary damages on a fraud claim. So, it would stand to reason that, while fraud can be the aggravating circumstance for other causes of action, it cannot be the aggravating circumstance for itself.

E. Clear and Convincing Evidence Standard.

To be entitled to exemplary damages, a claimant must first establish “by clear and convincing evidence that the harm with respect to which the claimant seeks recovery of exemplary damages results from ... malice; or ... gross negligence.” TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.003(a)(2), (3). This intermediate standard falls between the preponderance standard applicable to most civil proceedings and the reasonable doubt standard in criminal proceedings. See Citizens Nat’l Bank v. Allen Rae Invs., Inc., 142 S.W.3d 459, 483 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2004, no pet.). The proof must, therefore, weigh heavier than merely the greater weight of the credible evidence, but is not required to rise to the level of unequivocal or undisputed proof. Id.

F. Unanimity.

After imposing a heightened burden of proof in 2003, the Texas Legislature imposed an additional requirement—a unanimous jury verdict—to support an award of punitive damages. Specifically, “[e]xemplary damages may be awarded only if the jury was unanimous in regard to finding liability for and the amount of exemplary damages.” TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE §41.003(d).

Texas Rule of Civil Procedure 226a makes it a little clearer that the jury must be unanimous on:

- 1) underlying liability;
- 2) punitive liability; and
- 3) the amount of punitive damages.

If exemplary damages are sought against a defendant, the jury must unanimously find, with respect to that defendant, (i) liability on at least one claim for actual damages that will support an award of exemplary damages; (ii) any additional conduct, such as malice or gross negligence ... and (iii) the amount of exemplary damages to be awarded.

See also Kia Motors Corp. v. Ruiz, 348 S.W.3d 465, 491 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2011), rev’d on other grounds, No. 11-0709, ___ S.W.3d ___, 2014 WL 1258169 (Tex. March 28, 2014); Deatley v. Rodriguez, 246 S.W.3d 848, 849 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2008, no pet.) (affirming take-nothing judgment on exemplary damages where jury finding on underlying theory of punitive liability was not unanimous); Cullum v. White, 399 S.W.3d 173, 187-88 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2011, pet. denied) (where there was no unanimous verdict on defamation claim, party was not entitled to exemplary damages).

In federal court, unanimity should not be a concern since any verdict must be unanimous.

Unless the parties stipulate otherwise, the verdict must be unanimous and must be returned by a jury of at least six members.

FED. R. CIV. P. 48(b).

G. Cap-Busting Theories.

Before a court will apply the exception to the statutory damages cap in section 41.008(c), the plaintiff must obtain jury findings that the defendant violated one of the criminal code provisions listed in the statute, and that the violation was committed knowingly or intentionally. See Madison v. Williamson, 241 S.W.3d 145, 161 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2007, pet. denied). The fraud, malice, or gross negligence necessary to obtain exemplary damages in the first place is not sufficient, in and of itself, to evoke the exception. Id. To do so would be inconsistent with the statutory scheme which expressly limits exemplary damages even when fraud, malice, or gross negligence has been proven by clear and convincing evidence. Id.; see also Signal Peak Enters. of Texas, Inc. v. Bettina Invs., Inc., 138 S.W.3d 915, 927 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2004, no pet.).

H. Corporate Liability for Punitive Damages.

Unlike ordinary negligence, a corporation is not vicariously liable for intentional acts that might give rise to punitive damages. So, a pleading of vicarious liability against a corporate defendant is not sufficient to plead a punitive damages claim against that entity. Rather, there must be a direct act of negligence against the corporation (i.e., negligent hiring, supervision, training, retention, etc.), or there must be proof that:

- 1) the principal authorized the doing and the manner of the act;
- 2) the agent was unfit and the principal was reckless in employing him;
- 3) the agent was employed in a managerial capacity and was acting in the scope of employment; or
- 4) the employer or a manager of the employer ratified or approved the act.

Fisher v. Carrousel Motor Hotel, Inc., 424 S.W.2d 627, 630 (Tex. 1967); King v. McGruff, 234 S.W.2d 403, 434-35 (Tex. 1950) (adopting RESTATEMENT (SECOND) OF TORTS § 909); see also Hammerly Oaks, Inc. v. Edwards, 958 S.W.2d 387, 391 (Tex. 1997); Ramos v. Frito-Lay, Inc., 784 S.W.2d 667, 668-69 (Tex. 1990); Fort Worth Elevators Co. v. Russell, 70 S.W.2d 397, 406 (Tex. 1934), disapproved on other grounds by Wright v. Gafford-Hill & Co., 725 S.W.2d 712, 714 (Tex. 1987).

A corporation can also be liable for the conduct of its “vice-principal.” Fort Worth Elevators, 70 S.W.2d at 406. A “vice principal” is:

- a) a corporate officer;

- b) a person who has authority to employ, direct, and discharge an employee of the corporation;
- c) a person engaged in the performance of nondelegable or absolute duties of the corporation; or
- d) a person to whom the corporation has confided the management of the whole or a department or division of the business of the corporation.

Id. at 406. Acts of a “vice principal” are deemed to be the acts of the corporation for purposes of punitive damages since the vice-principal “represents the corporation in its corporate capacity” and “inarguably authorize[s] and approve[s] his own” conduct. Bennett v. Reynolds, 315 S.W.3d 867, 885 (Tex. 2010).

And, finally, as referenced by the definition, a corporation remains independently liable for the performance of its “absolute or nondelegable duties,” which include:

- 1) the duty to provide rules and regulations for the safety of employees and to warn them as to the hazards of their positions or employment;
- 2) the duty to furnish reasonably safe machinery or instrumentalities with which its employees are to labor;
- 3) the duty to furnish its employees with a reasonably safe place to work; and
- 4) the duty to exercise ordinary care to select careful and competent co-employees.

Id. at 401; see also Kroger Co. v. Elwood, 197 S.W.3d 793, 794 (Tex. 2006); Humble Sand & Gravel, Inc. v. Gomez, 146 S.W.3d 170, 186 n.45 (Tex. 2004).

I. A Corporation is Not Liable for the Criminal Act of Another in Certain Cases.

As a general rule, in cases where the alleged harm results from “an assault, theft, or other criminal act,” a corporation is not responsible for punitive damages based on the criminal act of a third party. TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.005(a). Some courts hold that this rule applies to prohibit exemplary damages even where the criminal conduct acts concurrently with that of the non-criminal defendant. See Miles v. Jerry Kidd Oil Co., 363 S.W.3d 823, 826-27 (Tex. App.—Tyler 2012, no pet.) (harm resulting from intoxication manslaughter); Healthcare Centers of Texas, Inc. v. Rigby, 97 S.W.3d 610, 618-19 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2002, pet. denied), disapproved of on other grounds by Diversified Gen. Partner, Inc. v. Rubio, 185 S.W.3d 842 (Tex. 2005) (harm resulting from sexual assault by nursing home employee); see also In re Islamorada Fish Co. Texas, L.L.C., 319 S.W.3d 908, 912 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2010, orig. proceeding) (refusing to allow discovery of net worth because statute prohibited an award of punitive damages in Dram Shop Act case). This general prohibition, according to at least two courts, need not be pled to be applied. In re Islamorada Fish Co., 319 S.W.3d at 912-13 (because § 41.005 provides that, under certain circumstances, there is not valid claim for punitive damages in the first place, it is not an affirmative defense that must be pled); see also Wilson v. K.W.G., Inc., No. 11-03-00084-CV, 2004 WL 1925599 *2 (Tex. App.—Eastland Aug. 31, 2004, no pet.) (mem. op.) (issue involving § 41.005 sufficiently raised by motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict).

But, as with most rules, there are exceptions. These exceptions probably need to be pled. These exceptions apply where:

- 1) the criminal act was committed by an employee of the defendant;<sup>5</sup>
- 2) the defendant is criminally responsible as a party to the criminal act under the provisions of Chapter 7 of the Texas Penal Code;<sup>6</sup>
- 3) the criminal act occurred at a location where, at the time of the criminal act, the defendant was maintaining a common nuisance under the provisions of Chapter 125, Civil Practice and Remedies Code,<sup>7</sup> and had not made reasonable attempts to abate the nuisance; or
- 4) the criminal act resulted from the defendant's intentional or knowing violation of a statutory duty under Subchapter D, Chapter 92, Property Code,<sup>8</sup> and the criminal act occurred after the statutory deadline for compliance with that duty.

<sup>5</sup> Under this exception, the employer is still only liable from its criminal employee if: (1) the principal authorized the doing and manner of the act; (2) the agent was unfit and the principal acted with malice in employing or retaining him; (3) the agent was employed in a managerial capacity and was acting in the scope of employment; or (4) the employer or a manager of the employer ratified or approved the act. TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.005(c). Sound familiar? See Section IV(H), above.

<sup>6</sup> Of particular interest, § 7.22 of the Texas Penal Code addresses circumstances in which a corporation or association may be criminally responsible and § 7.23 addresses individual criminal responsibility for conduct performed in the name of or on behalf of a corporation or association.

<sup>7</sup> TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE §125.0015 (defining “common nuisance”).

<sup>8</sup> Chapter 92 of the Texas Property Code addresses the landlord-tenant relationship.

TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.005(b).

J. Compliance With Federal Regulations Does Not Preclude Punitive Liability.

For some time now, commentators have seriously questioned the legal logic of holding a party to be grossly negligent under the Texas definition of that term, when that party is in full compliance with federal regulations. See Ashley W. Warren, Compliance with Governmental Regulatory Standards: Is It Enough to Immunize a Defendant from Tort Liability?, 49 BAYLOR LAW REV. 763, 809-14 (1997) (“At the very minimum, compliance with the applicable safety requirements should bar the imposition of punitive damages against a defendant manufacturer.”); Christopher Scott D’Angelo, Effect of Compliance or Noncompliance with Applicable Governmental Product Safety Regulations on a Determination of Product Defect, 36 SO. TEX. LAW REV. 453, 467-68 (1995). In fact, a 1991 ALI study concluded:

[t]he strongest case for a regulatory compliance defense arises when punitive damages are sought. If a defendant has fully complied with regulatory requirements and fully disclosed all material information relating to risk and its control, it is hard to justify the jury’s freedom to award punitive damages.

D’Angelo, Effect of Compliance or Noncompliance, 36 SO. TEX. L. REV. at 467 (quoting 2 American Law Institute, Enterprise Responsibility for Personal Injury 101 (1991)).

Nonetheless, in Texas, compliance with governmental regulations does not foreclose, as a matter of law, a claim for punitive damages. See Gen. Motors Corp. v. Iracheta, 90 S.W.3d 725, 741 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2002), rev’d on other grounds, 161 S.W.3d 462 (Tex. 2005) (compliance with federal guidelines is but one factor courts should consider in determining whether a defendant was grossly negligent); Miles v. Ford Motor Co., 922 S.W.2d 572, 588-89 & n.7 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 1996) (declining to decide issue; held evidence factually insufficient to support jury’s finding of malice), rev’d on other grounds, 967 S.W.2d 377 (Tex. 1998); Morris v. Cessna Aircraft Co., 833 F. Supp. 2d 622, 641 (N.D. Tex. 2011).

K. Statutory Liability for Punitive Damages.

To the extent another statute allows for the recovery of punitive damages, the provisions of Chapter 41 can still control. Specifically, the cap on damages will still apply, even where the “damages are awarded under another law of this state.” TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.002(b). In fact, to the extent of any conflict between Chapter 41 and all other laws, Chapter 41, controls. Id. at § 41.002(c). But, if the “other law” establishes a “lower maximum amount of damages for a particular claim,” then that other law will apply. Id. at § 41.002(b). Also, a party may not recover exemplary damages under Chapter 41 if that party elects to have its recovery multiplied under another statute. Id. at § 41.004(b).

At the same time, there are certain statutory causes of action that are expressly excluded from Chapter 41:

- Texas Business & Commerce Code § 15.21 (establishing damages recoverable for a violation of Texas Business & Commerce Code § 15.05, or the “Texas Free Enterprise and Antitrust Act of 1983”);
- Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act Claim (except as specifically provided by § 17.50 of that Act, which also provides that “Chapter 41, Civil Practice and Remedies Code, does not apply to a cause of action brought under this subchapter.”);
- Actions to prevent Medicaid fraud under Chapter 36 of the Human Resources Code; or
- a claim under Chapter 21 of the Texas Insurance Code (which no longer exists, having been re-codified throughout many different chapters of the Insurance Code including, presumably, Chapter 541 which now deals with the regulation of unfair competition and deceptive acts and practices in the business of insurance).

V. UNIQUE CIRCUMSTANCES AND PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

A. Negligent Hiring/Entrustment.

1. The Benefits of Pleading for Punitive Damages.

A pleading and submission of a punitive damage claim can also affect whether claims of direct negligence against a corporation are submitted. In cases where only ordinary negligence is alleged, negligent entrustment and respondeat superior are mutually exclusive theories of recovery. See Rosell v. Central West Motor Stages, Inc., 89 S.W.3d 643, 654 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2002, pet. denied); Estate of Arrington v. Fields, 578 S.W.2d 173, 178 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1979, writ ref’d n.r.e.) (“In cases where the plaintiff was relying upon the theory of negligent entrustment of a motor vehicle, the courts have refused to permit the plaintiff to proceed with this separate ground of recovery against the owner where the derivative liability of the owner has already been established by an admission or stipulation of agency or course and scope of employment.”). Thus, where respondeat superior is admitted or stipulated to, a plaintiff is precluded from proceeding on a negligent entrustment or hiring theory. Fields, 578 S.W.2d at

178. Once respondeat superior is established, the entrustment or employment issues are immaterial—the master is liable for the acts of his servant whether that servant is competent or not. Id.

However, where gross negligence is alleged against the employer, the entrustment, training, or supervision theories are no longer immaterial. These theories become separate and independent grounds to recover exemplary damages against the employer. Rosell, 89 S.W.3d at 654; Fields, 578 S.W.2d at 178-79. So, even if the employer stipulates to vicarious liability for its employee’s conduct, where gross negligence has been alleged, the derivative liability theories – entrustment, hiring, training, supervision, etc. – will still need to be submitted. Because of the gross negligence claim, the derivative theories only become necessary for establishing the employer’s threshold, independent negligence that then could give rise to exemplary damage liability. Since respondeat superior is undisputed, there would arguably be no need to include the employer in the ordinary negligence or apportionment questions. See Rosell, 89 S.W.3d at 656 (approving similar submission).

2. Proving Punitive Liability for Negligent Hiring/Entrustment.

An employer may be grossly negligent in hiring an employee if the employee was unfit and the employer was reckless in hiring him. McDorman v. Texas-Cola Leasing Co., 288 F.Supp.2d 796, 809 (N.D. Tex. 2003) (applying Texas law). To impose punitive damages for negligent entrustment, Texas courts require more evidence than that the employer simply failed to inquire into or check the driver’s driving record. McDorman, 288 F. Supp. 2d at 809 (citing Williams v. Steves Indus., Inc., 699 S.W.2d 570, 575 (Tex. 1985); Webster v. Carson, 609 S.W.2d 850, 851-52 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1980, no writ); Sw. Bell Tel. Co. v. Davis, 852 S.W.2d 191, 195-96 (Tex. Civ. App.—Waco 1979, no writ)). Texas courts will, however, uphold punitive damages where the employer makes no effort to obtain the employer’s driving record and has actual knowledge that the employee is an incompetent driver. Id. (citing Montgomery Ward & Co. v. Marvin Riggs Co., 584 S.W.2d 863, 866-67 (Tex. Civ. App.—Austin 1979, writ ref’d n.r.e.)).

B. Breach of Fiduciary Duty.

Historically, punitive damages were available in breach of fiduciary duty cases where the breach of fiduciary duty was intentional. See, e.g., Brosseau v. Ranzau, 81 S.W.3d 381, 396 (Tex. App.—Beaumont 2002, pet. denied); Lesikar v. Rapoport, 33 S.W.3d 282, 311 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 2000, pet. denied); see also Joe N. Pratt Ins. v. Doane, No. V-07-07, 2010 WL 697285 *3 (S.D. Tex. Feb. 19, 2010). Some courts, however, in light of Chapter 41, question whether punitive damages can be supported absent compliance with the express terms of Chapter 41, which requires – at the very least – a finding of gross negligence, fraud, or malice. In Yeckel v. Abbott, No. 03-04-00713, 2009 WL 1563587 *10 (Tex. App.—Austin June 4, 2009, pet. denied) (mem. op.), the court held that trial courts no longer have “broad-ranging equitable discretion to impose punitive damages regardless [of] whether the plaintiff has obtained the jury findings required by Chapter 41.” See id.; see also Joe N. Pratt Ins., 2010 WL 697285 at *3 (agreeing with Yeckel and requiring compliance with section 41.003(a) to support award of exemplary damages in breach of fiduciary duty case).

C. Breach of Contract.

Exemplary damages are not recoverable on a breach of contract claim. Jim Walter Homes, Inc. v. Reed, 711 S.W.2d 617, 618 (Tex. 1986). Since an intentional breach of a contract cannot support an award of punitive damages, gross negligence in the breach of a contract, which involves a mental state lower in culpability than intentional or willful acts, will not support such an award either. Id.

However, punitive damages are available in cases of fraudulent inducement. See Formosa Plastics Corp., USA v. Presidio Eng'rs & Contractors, Inc., 960 S.W.2d 41, 47 (Tex. 1998); see also Tony Gullo Motors I, L.P. v. Chapa, 212 S.W.3d 299, 306 (Tex. 2006).

D. Punitive Damages by Default?

In the default judgment context, one must be careful not to get too greedy. “Although a default has the effect of admitting all matters properly alleged, if damages are unliquidated or not proved by an instrument in writing, the prevailing party must present evidence on damages.” Herbert v. Greater Gulf Coast Enters., Inc., 915 S.W.2d 866, 872 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1995, no pet.) (citing TEX. R. CIV. P. 243 and Holt Atherton Indus., Inc. v. Heine, 835 S.W.2d 80, 83 (Tex. 1992)). Unliquidated claims include exemplary damages, and to sustain an award of exemplary damages in a default judgment, there must be pleadings of knowing conduct and then the presentation of evidence that the extent of the defendant’s knowledge warrants punitive damages. Id. The trial court must still be in a position to consider the Kraus<sup>9</sup> factors to determine whether an award of exemplary damages is reasonable. Id. In other words, one must be prepared to put on evidence of the grossly negligent, malicious, or fraudulent conduct, and damages, so that the court is in a position to properly measure the award of exemplary damages. Otherwise, such damages—in the default context—are subject to being set aside.

E. Gross Negligence in Workers’ Compensation Subscriber Cases.

In cases in where injured employees are covered by the employer’s workers’ compensation insurance, workers’ compensation benefits are the employee’s exclusive remedy. TEX. LABOR CODE § 408.001(a). However, the Workers’ Compensation Act does not prohibit the recovery of exemplary damages by the surviving spouse or heirs of a deceased employee whose death was caused by an intentional act or omission of the employer or by the employer’s gross negligence. Id. at § 408.001(b). In those cases, then, issues of ordinary negligence are not at issue and the estate’s and wrongful death beneficiaries actual damages are not recoverable. Accordingly, there is some confusion as to how such a case is to be submitted in light of the requirements of Chapter 41.

According to Wright v. Gifford-Hill & Co., 725 S.W.2d 712, 714 (Tex. 1987), and Otis Elevator Co. v. Joseph, 749 S.W.2d 920, 923 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1988, no writ), issues inquiring about the employer’s ordinary negligence are not to be submitted to the jury in these cases. Joseph takes it one step further, holding that a comparative responsibility finding is unnecessary because Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code § 33.001, which provides the 50% bar to recovery, does not apply to workers’ compensation actions.

But, the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code tells us that for an exemplary damages claim, there must be underlying liability, actual damages, and punitive liability. So, how does this occur in light of Wright and Otis Elevator? Good question.

At the very least, there should be a submission of the plaintiff’s actual damages. Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code § 41.008 requires separate answers for economic and noneconomic damages to take advantage of the limits placed on the recovery of exemplary damages. So, a plaintiff should be entitled to, and a defendant should welcome, the introduction of evidence of actual damage amounts and the submission of those elements to the jury. In Hall v. Diamond Shamrock Refining Co., 82 S.W.3d 5 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2001), rev’d on other grounds, 168 S.W.3d 164 (Tex. 2005), the San Antonio Court of Appeals found that it was error not to allow the plaintiff to introduce evidence of actual damages. See id. at 24.<sup>10</sup> Finding that evidence of actual damages was relevant based on section 41.008(a)'s requirement that damages be segregated for purposes of applying the limitation formula, the court stated that the Plaintiff "should be permitted to introduce evidence and obtain jury findings as to the amount of economic and noneconomic damages." See id.

<sup>9</sup> Alamo Nat’l Bank v. Kraus, 616 S.W.2d 908, 910 (Tex. 1981).

This holding never addressed, and certainly conflicts with, the Texas Supreme Court's holding in Wright v. Gifford-Hill & Co., 725 S.W.2d 712, 714 (Tex. 1987). In Wright, the court held that questions of ordinary negligence and actual damages are not involved in an action to recover exemplary damages for the death of an employee and, therefore, should not be submitted. The court found that because the plaintiff was precluded from recovering such damages by the Act, it was a waste of the jury's time to require a finding of actual damages. Thus, as a matter of judicial economy, the court found that a jury finding on actual damages was not required.

But, Wright's "judicial economy" holding should no longer apply under the amendments to the exemplary damage statute. Obviously, the Wright decision came well before the amendments to the Civil Practice and Remedies Code. And, the workers' compensation act used to be expressly exempted from any limitations on exemplary damages provided by the Civil Practice and Remedies Code. But, that is no longer the case. In fact, the limitation now applicable to workers' compensation claims is specifically tied to the claimant's actual damages. Thus, as the San Antonio Court of Appeals found in Hall, these elements should be submitted to the jury.

F. Punitive Damages in Family Law Cases.

In Schlueter, the Texas Supreme Court held that that there is no independent tort for fraud on the community against a spouse, and thus there cannot be punitive damages awarded for fraud on the community. See Schlueter v. Schlueter, 975 S.W.2d 584, 589 (Tex. 1998) ("Because of our holding in the present case that there is no independent tort cause of action for wrongful disposition by a spouse of community assets, the wronged spouse may not recover punitive damages from the other spouse."); see also In re Marriage of Notash, 118 S.W.3d 868, 873-74 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 2003, no pet.).

G. Punitive Damages Not Available in Some Statutory Causes of Action.

In the process of pleading for punitive damages, be aware of certain statutory causes of action that do not expressly provide for exemplary damages. For example, the Texas Dram Shop Act "provides the exclusive cause of action for providing an alcoholic beverage to a person 18 years of age or older." TEX. ALCO. BEV. CODE § 2.03(c). The Act further states that "[the] liability of providers under this chapter for the actions of their employees, customers, members, or guests who are or become intoxicated is in lieu of common law or other statutory law warranties and duties of providers of alcoholic beverages." Id. at § 2.03(a).

The Dram Shop Act makes no provision for exemplary or punitive damages. Rather, the Act provides only that a statutory cause of action exists under the Act if the claimant can prove, among other things, that the intoxication of the recipient of the alcoholic beverage was a proximate cause of the damages suffered. TEX. ALCO. BEV. CODE § 2.02(b)(2). Inclusion only of the term "damages suffered" has been interpreted to demonstrate a legislative intent that dram shop liability only extend to compensatory damages. See Steak & Ale of Texas, Inc. v. Borneman, 62 S.W.3d 898, 907 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2001, no pet.). "Considering and giving effect to the plain meaning of the words used, the Dram Shop Act's silence on the issue of exemplary damages, and construing the Act and the code into which it was enacted as a whole and the relevant policy considerations, we conclude that the legislature did not intend for punitive damages to be available for a violation of the Dram Shop Act." Id. at 910-11.

The Texas Tort Claims Act makes it crystal clear - punitive damages are expressly not authorized. See TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE §101.024.

VI. PROVING EXEMPLARY DAMAGES.

A. Compensatory Damages as a Prerequisite.

Proof of actual damages is a prerequisite to the recovery of exemplary damages under Chapter 41 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code. See TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.004(a) (requiring more than award of nominal damages to support exemplary damages); Juliette Fowler Homes v. Welch Associates, 793 S.W.2d 660, 667 (Tex. 1990).

This requirement that actual damages be awarded as a prerequisite to exemplary damages does not also require that those damages be recoverable. See Nabours v. Longview Savings & Loan Ass'n, 700 S.W.2d 901, 904 (Tex. 1985); Van Voris v. Team Chop Shop, LLC, 402 S.W.3d 915, 925 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2013, no pet.).

B. Chapter 41/Kraus Factors.

Chapter 41 identifies the evidence the trier of fact is to consider in determining the amount of exemplary damages. These factors, also known as the Kraus factors, after Alamo Nat'l Bank v. Kraus, 616 S.W.2d 908 (Tex. 1981), are as follows:

<sup>10</sup> Unfortunately, the Texas Supreme Court did not reach this issue, instead reversing the case based on a finding of no evidence of gross negligence.

- 1) Nature of the wrong;
- 2) Character of the conduct involved;
- 3) Degree of culpability of the wrongdoer;
- 4) Situation and sensibilities of the parties concerned;<sup>11</sup>
- 5) Extent to which such conduct offends a public sense of justice and propriety; and
- 6) Net worth of the defendant.

With the exception of the defendant's net worth, all of these factors make up the original Kraus factors. Can other factors, outside of the Kraus factors be considered?

1. Attorney's fees? Yes.

At least two cases have allowed a jury to consider legal fees in awarding exemplary damages. See R.J. Suarez Enterprises, Inc. v. Pnyx L.P., 380 S.W.3d 238 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2012, no pet.); Techcraft, Inc. v. Van Houten, 709 S.W.2d 688 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1986, no writ).

2. Intended Use of the Punitive Damage Award? No.

In Service Corp. Int'l v. Guerra, 348 S.W.3d 221 (Tex. 2011), the Texas Supreme Court advised that testimony regarding what the plaintiff planned to do with any award was not relevant and was not admissible. Id., 348 S.W.2d at 238.

C. The Statutory Cap and Cap-Busting Theories.

Under certain circumstances, the statutory cap on punitive damages can be avoided. Where the defendant's conduct amounts to conduct described as a felony in certain sections of the Penal Code, and that conduct is committed knowingly or intentionally, then recovery is not limited.<sup>12</sup> See TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.008(c).

<sup>11</sup> This factor refers to evidence of remorse, remedial measures, and ability to pay punitive damages. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. v. Cruz, 9 S.W.3d 173, 188 (Tex. App.—El Paso 1999), pet. granted, judgm't vacated, and remanded by agr., 44 Tex. Sup. Ct. J. 196 (Dec. 21, 2000) (citing Ellis County State Bank v. Kever, 936 S.W.2d 683, 686 (Tex. App.—Dallas 1996, no writ)).

<sup>12</sup> Intentional or knowing conduct is not required for intoxication assault (TEX. PENAL CODE §49.07) or intoxication manslaughter (TEX. PENAL CODE §49.08), because no culpable mental state is required for those offenses.

1. Burden of Proof?

Chapter 41 is rather clear on the burden of proof applicable to proving punitive liability and punitive damages. But, Chapter 41 is silent with regard to the burden of proof applicable to any of the cap-busting theories.

a. Beyond a Reasonable Doubt?

In Mission Resources, Inc. v. Garza Energy Trust, Corpus Christi Court of Appeals declared, without any real analysis of the issue, the plaintiff's felony theft cap-busting theory had to be proven "beyond a reasonable doubt." Mission Resources, Inc. v. Garza Energy Trust, 166 S.W.3d 301, 315 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi 2005), aff'd in part, rev'd in part on other grounds, Coastal Oil & Gas Corp. v. Garza Energy Trust, 268 S.W.3d 1 (Tex. 2008). Mission Resources has been cited for its "beyond a reasonable doubt" burden of proof by one case, but that case never reached the issue, finding legally insufficient evidence of malice. See HCRA of Texas, Inc. v. Johnson, 178 S.W.3d 861, 874 n. 13 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2005, no pet.). The "beyond a reasonable doubt" burden was also referenced parenthetically in one other case that cited Mission Resources only for the proposition that "[b]efore a court will apply the exception to the statutory damage caps in section 41.008(c), a plaintiff must obtain jury findings that the defendant violated one of the criminal code provisions listed in the statute, and that the violation was committed knowingly or intentionally." Madison v. Williamson, 241 S.W.3d 145, 161 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2007, pet. denied). Like HCRA of Texas, Inc., Madison did not reach the burden of proof issue because the plaintiff never submitted any cap-busting theory to the jury. See id.

b. Clear and convincing evidence?

In Marin v. IESI TX Corp., 317 S.W.3d 314 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2010, pet. denied), a cap-busting theory of forgery was submitted under a clear and convincing evidence standard. See id. at 326. However, it appears no issue was ever raised regarding the appropriate burden of proof.

c. Preponderance of the evidence?

In Service Corp., Int'l v. Guerra, 348 S.W.3d 239 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi 2009), rev'd, 348 S.W.3d 221 (Tex. 2011), the court addressed whether the jury submission was proper when it failed to tie the felonious conduct to the plaintiff's injuries. See id. at 251-52. In the process, however, the opinion quotes the jury question, which does not mention any burden of proof, presumably meaning the court simply applied a preponderance of the evidence standard. See id. at 251.

So, cap-busting theories have been submitted under three different standards of review, and there appears to be no clear guidance as to which one is appropriate. Certainly, the argument goes, had the legislature wanted to impose a higher, clear and convincing evidence or “beyond a reasonable doubt” burden a cap-busting theory, it could have, as it did with regarding to punitive liability and punitive damages in § 41.003. Since it did not, an argument can be made that the standard “preponderance of the evidence” standard applies. On the other hand, since liability for exemplary damages requires proof by “clear and convincing evidence,” an argument could also be made that this same standard applies to a cap-busting theory, which also establishes liability, albeit unlimited liability, for punitive damages.

2. Unanimity?

The same questions arise with regard to Chapter 41’s unanimity requirement. Must a jury’s finding of felonious, cap-busting conduct be unanimous? Again, there is no reference to unanimity in section 41.008. One case mentions the argument—that unanimity is required for purposes of busting the punitive damages cap—but does so in a case governed by old law, which did not require unanimity. See Murphy v. Am. Rice, Inc., No. 01-03-01357-CV, 2007 WL 766016 *21 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] Mar. 9, 2007, no pet.). In the process, however, the court of appeals did note that, aside from the absence of a unanimity requirement in the statute, no case law was cited, nor could the court find any, “requiring that, in a civil case (as opposed to a criminal case), ... a jury’s findings that a criminal offense was committed must be unanimous.” Id.

D. Constitutional Due Process Limitations on Punitive Damages.

Aside from any statutory limitations, the United States Supreme Court and the Texas Supreme Court have recognized due process concerns involving excessive punitive damage awards.

The Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment prohibits the imposition of grossly excessive or arbitrary punishments on a tortfeasor. The reason is that “[e]lementary notions of fairness enshrined in our constitutional jurisprudence dictate that a person receive fair notice not only of the conduct that will subject him to punishment, but also of the severity of the penalty that a State may impose.” To the extent an award is grossly excessive, it furthers no legitimate purpose and constitutes an arbitrary deprivation of property.

State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell, 538 U.S. 408, 416-17 (2003) (citations omitted). So, to protect parties against potentially excessive awards, the U.S. Supreme Court instructs that courts reviewing punitive damage awards under the due process clause consider the following “guideposts” to “ensure[] that that an award of punitive damages is based upon an “application of law, rather than a decisionmaker’s caprice.” See id. at 418.

These Gore guideposts, named for BMW of N. Am., Inc. v. Gore, 517 U.S. 559 (1996), are:

- 1) the degree of reprehensibility of the defendant’s conduct;
- 2) the disparity between the actual or potential harm suffered by the plaintiff and the punitive damages award; and
- 3) the difference between the punitive damages awarded by the jury and the civil penalties authorized or imposed in comparable cases.

Bennett v. Reynolds, 315 S.W.3d 867, 873 (Tex. 2010) (quoting State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. v. Campbell, 538 U.S. 408, 418 (2003)). Typically, in making the due process argument, parties focus only on the ratio between actual and punitive damages. The ratio, however, is simply one consideration.

1. Degree of Reprehensibility.

In fact, the most important consideration is not the ratio, but rather the reprehensibility of the defendant’s conduct, which consists of five nonexclusive factors which take into account whether:

- a) the harm inflicted was physical rather than economic;
- b) the tortious conduct showed “an indifference to or a reckless disregard for the health or safety of others”;
- c) “the target of the conduct had financial vulnerability”;
- d) “the conduct involved repeated actions,” not just “an isolated incident”; and
- e) the harm resulted from “intentional malice, trickery, or deceit,” as opposed to “mere accident.”

Bennett, 315 S.W.3d at 874 (quoting Campbell, 538 U.S. at 419). This analysis focuses on the “enormity” of the misconduct. Id. This analysis also allows a court to consider related conduct that demonstrates the “deliberateness and culpability of the defendant’s action” where the conduct has a nexus to the specific harm suffered, and also allows consideration of surrounding circumstances, even ones beyond the underlying tort. Id. at 875. “Obviously, a tortfeasor’s attempts to cover his tracks and escape responsibility can imply willfulness.” Id. (noting Gore’s suggestion that a court consider such conduct as deliberately false statements, affirmative misconduct, and concealment of evidence or improper motive); Wackenhut Corrs.

Corp., 305 S.W.3d at 656-57 (post-act attempts by tortfeasors to cover up or avoid responsibility for their acts may imply a consciousness that their acts were intentional or willful, and not a mere mistake or accident).

2. Ratio Between the Actual or Potential Harm and Punitive Damages.

This guidepost focuses not just on the ratio between the exemplary damages and the actual harm, but also the potential harm. Bennett, 315 S.W.3d at 873. The proper inquiry is “whether there is a reasonable relationship between the punitive damages award and the harm likely to result from the defendant's conduct as well as the harm that actually has occurred.” Wackenhut, 305 S.W.3d at 657-58 (quoting Gore, 517 U.S. at 581).

There is also no bright line ratio that exceeds constitutional limits. A rigid application of a 4:1 ratio is not universally required. Bennett, 315 S.W.3d at 879. “Indeed, low awards of compensatory damages may properly support a higher ratio than high compensatory awards, if, for example, a particularly egregious act has resulted in only a small amount of economic damages.” Wackenhut, 305 S.W.3d at 658 (quoting Gore, 517 U.S. at 582). For example, “[a] higher ratio may ... be justified in cases in which the injury is hard to detect or the monetary value of noneconomic harm might have been difficult to determine.” Id. The Texas Supreme Court in Chapa found a 4.33 to 1 ratio excessive where only one of the five reprehensibility factors favored exemplary damages. See Tony Gullo Motors I, LP v. Chapa, 212 S.W.3d 299, 310 (Tex. 2006); see also Safeshred, Inc. v. Martinez, 310 S.W.3d 649, 665 (Tex. App.—Austin 2010), aff'd in part, rev'd in part on other grounds, 365 S.W.3d 655 (Tex. 2012) (ratios of 11 to 1 and 26 to 1 not excessive where relatively low damages are accompanied by egregious conduct by defendant); Wackenhut, 305 S.W.3d at 657-58.

3. Comparable Penalties.

Finally, the court can compare exemplary damages with legislatively authorized civil sanctions. Bennett, 315 S.W.3d at 880. This factor simply means that, given the “notion that legislatures make policy and are well positioned to define and deter undesired behavior,” substantial deference should be given to “legislative judgments concerning appropriate sanctions for the conduct at issue.” Id. at 880-81 (quoting Gore, 517 U.S. at 583). So, where applicable civil penalties exist, this guidepost gives bad actors fair notice of what is forbidden and of potential penalties. Id. at 881.

VII. THE JURY CHARGE.

A. Jury Instructions.

Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code § 41.012 mandates that in exemplary damage cases certain instructions be given to the jury:

- Section 41.001 – Definitions. Section 41.001 includes 13 different definitions. Presumably, § 41.012 means that jury should be given the definitions provided for gross negligence (11), malice (7), or fraud (6), as well as an instruction on the “clear and convincing” evidence burden of proof (2). See, e.g., State Bar of Texas, Texas Pattern Jury Charges – General Negligence & Intentional Personal Torts PJC 4.2 (2012 ed.); State Bar of Texas, Texas Pattern Jury Charges – Business, Consumer, Insurance & Employment PJC 115.36 comment (2012 ed.).
- Section 41.003 – Standards for Recovery of Exemplary Damages. Section 41.003(e) specifically requires that, in all cases where the issue of exemplary damages is submitted to the jury, the jury is to be instructed “... that in order for you to find exemplary damages, your answer to the question regarding the amount of such damages must be unanimous.” See, e.g., PJC – Negligence 15.7C.
- Section 41.010 – Considerations in Making Award. Section (a) requires that, before making an award of exemplary damages, the trier of fact “consider the definition and purposes of exemplary damages as provided by Section 41.001.” Presumably, this section refers to § 41.001(5) which defines “exemplary damages” as “any damages awarded as a penalty or by way of punishment but not for compensatory purposes. Exemplary damages are neither economic nor noneconomic damages. ‘Exemplary damages’ includes punitive damages.” See, e.g., PJC – Negligence 15.7C.
- Section 41.011 – Evidence Relating to Amount of Exemplary Damages. Section 41.011 is the section that mandates that, in determining the amount of exemplary damages, the trier of fact consider the Kraus factors. See Section VI(B), above; see also, e.g., PJC – Negligence 15.7C.

1. Other Instructions Required?

Notwithstanding the instruction mandated by Chapter 41, the United State Supreme Court has indicated that additional instructions may be necessary. In State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell, 538 U.S. 408, 418 (2003), the Court noted its concern with the manner in which juries are typically instructed regarding punitive damages:

“... Jury instructions typically leave the jury with wide discretion in choosing amounts, and the presentation of evidence of a defendant's net worth creates the potential that juries will use their verdicts to express biases against big businesses, particularly those without strong local presences.” Our concerns are heightened when the decisionmaker is presented, as we shall discuss, with evidence that has little bearing as to the amount of punitive damages that should be awarded. Vague instructions, or those that merely inform the jury to avoid “passion or prejudice,” do little to aid the decisionmaker in its task of assigning appropriate weight to evidence that is relevant and evidence that is tangential or only inflammatory.

Campbell, 538 U.S. at 417-18 (citations omitted). In Campbell, the concern centered on evidence of State Farm's nationwide operations and policies regarding claims adjusting. However, State Farm's operations and policies, at least in these other states, was lawful. See id. at 422. Noting that such out-of-state conduct, even if lawful, “may be probative when it demonstrates the deliberateness and culpability of the defendant's action in the State where it is tortious,” such “conduct must have a nexus to the specific harm suffered by the plaintiff.” So, where such evidence is involved, the Court stated:

A jury must be instructed[] that it may not use evidence of out-of-state conduct to punish a defendant for conduct that was lawful in the jurisdiction where it occurred.

Id. at 422.

Phillip Morris USA v. Williams, 549 U.S. 346 (2007), also seems to support the need to instruct the jury so as to avoid punishment of a defendant for injuries to nonparties. In Phillip Morris, the Court held that Oregon violated Phillip Morris's due process rights by refusing to instruct the jury not to punish Phillip Morris for injuries to other persons not before the court. “In our view, the Constitution's Due Process Clause forbids a State to use a punitive damages award to punish a defendant for injury that it inflicts upon nonparties or those whom they directly represent, i.e., injury that it inflicts upon those who are, essentially, strangers to the litigation.” Id. at 353.

Phillip Morris was denied the following instruction (as paraphrased by the Court) in an effort to distinguish between using harm to others as part of the “reasonable relationship” equation, which is permissible, and using it as a basis for punishment:

“you may consider the extent of harm suffered by others in determining what [the] reasonable relationship is” between Phillip Morris' punishable misconduct and harm to Jesse Williams, “[but] you are not to punish the defendant for the impact of its alleged misconduct on other persons, who may bring lawsuits of their own in which other juries can resolve their claims....”

Id. at 356. Although the Court did not expressly approve the form of the instruction submitted, the Court did mandate some form of protection:

How can we know whether a jury, in taking account of harm caused others under the rubric of reprehensibility, also seeks to punish the defendant for having caused injury to others? Our answer is that state courts cannot authorize procedures that create an unreasonable and unnecessary risk of any such confusion occurring. In particular, we believe that where the risk of that misunderstanding is a significant one—because, for instance, of the sort of evidence that was introduced at trial or the kinds of argument the plaintiff made to the jury—a court, upon request, must protect against that risk. Although the States have some flexibility to determine what kind of procedures they will implement, federal constitutional law obligates them to provide some form of protection in appropriate cases.

Id. at 357.

B. Unanimity and the Clear and Convincing Evidence Standard.

Chapter 41 unmistakably imposes a unanimity requirement on a finding of liability for and the amount of exemplary damages. TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.003(d). But, assume that the unanimity requirement – which section 41.003(d) requires be included in the charge of the court – is left out of the charge. Whose burden—if anyone's—is it to object to its omission and request its inclusion?

In Cullum v. White, 399 S.W.3d 173 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2011, pet. denied), the San Antonio court of appeals held that a complaint regarding the lack of unanimous verdict was not charge error that the defendant had to preserve by objection. Id. at 187. Rather, the court held that, as a matter of law, a party cannot recover exemplary damages without a unanimous verdict; therefore, no objection to the charge or the verdict was necessary. See id. at 187-88.

In Cullum however the verdict was not unanimous. It is unclear whether the instruction—imposed by section 41.003(e) and Texas Rule of Civil Procedure 226a—was also given. Nonetheless, this opinion indicates that the absence of unanimity—from the defendant’s perspective—is not charge error. So, if that instruction is missing from the charge, this case may provide an argument that its absence is not charge error that requires an objection.

That does not appear to present a prudent course for the practitioner, however. The plaintiff has the burden of proof to obtain all findings necessary to support his or her exemplary damage judgment. If one of those elements is missing, the plaintiff risks waiving the right to recover on that claim.

As a defendant, by not objecting, the defendant risks waiving its right to complain about the issue later, especially if the jury’s certificate indicates that the verdict was unanimous. And, strategically, the defendant will want to instruct the jury of the ominous burden to get all 6 or 12 jurors to agree on the punitive liability and damage questions.

This seems to be the treatment given the absence of a “clear and convincing” evidence instruction. In Lee v. Lee, 411 S.W.3d 95 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2013, no pet.), the jury awarded exemplary damages, but the trial court’s judgment did not award them because the instruction to the jury failed to reference the proper legal standard—clear and convincing—for the award. Id. at 114. On appeal, the plaintiff complained about the court’s failure to award the exemplary damages. The court of appeals, however, rejected that complaint, finding that it was the plaintiff’s obligation to obtain the finding necessary to support the exemplary damage claim—i.e., a finding that the harm to the tenant was proven by clear and convincing evidence to be the result of fraud, malice, or gross negligence. Id. at 115.

The tenant also argued, however, that the landlord failed to preserve the issue by objecting to the tenant’s proposed exemplary damage question. Id. The court of appeals found that it was not the landlord’s obligation to object since he was not complaining of the issue on appeal. See id.

This, of course, begs the question—had the trial court entered judgment on the jury verdict, even without an instruction on clear and convincing evidence standard, could the defendant complain absent an objection? Bank of America, N.A. v. Barth, No. 13-08-00612-CV, 2013 WL 5676024 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi Oct. 17, 2013, no pet.) (mem. op. on remand), answers that question a resounding “no.” Although not the defendant’s burden of proof to submit correct exemplary damage questions, it is the defendant’s burden to object if those questions are submitted incorrectly.<sup>13</sup> In Barth, the Bank properly objected to the failure to include the proper “clear and convincing” evidence standard in the charge. Id. at *15. The trial court submitted the charge anyway, and on appeal, the court of appeals found that the plaintiff, by submitting the incorrect question even in the face of the Bank’s objection, the plaintiff waived his right to the relief. Id.

VIII. REVIEW OF PUNITIVE LIABILITY/DAMAGE AWARDS ON APPEAL.

A. Section 41.013 Requires a Detailed Review of the Evidence.

Chapter 41 even imposes burdens on appeal of an exemplary damage award.

... an appellate court that reviews the evidence with respect to a finding by a trier of fact concerning liability for exemplary damages or with respect to the amount of exemplary damages awarded shall state, in a written opinion, the court’s reasons for upholding or disturbing the finding or award. The written opinion shall address the evidence or lack of evidence with specificity, as it relates to the liability for or amount of exemplary damages, in light of the requirements of this chapter.

TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.013. This is a codification of the obligation already imposed on courts of appeals in Transp. Ins. Co. v. Moriel, 879 S.W.2d 10, 31 (Tex. 1994). Conveniently, this obligation does not apply to the supreme court. But, at least it applies equally, whether the court of appeals is reversing or affirming the liability finding or the damage award.

<sup>13</sup> Absent an objection, the defendant would be stuck with the question, even as incorrectly submitted, on appeal. See Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Sturges, 52 S.W.3d 711, 715 (Tex. 2001) (assessment of evidence on appeal “must be made in light of the jury charge that the district court gave without objection”); City of Fort Worth v. Zimlich, 29 S.W.3d 62, 71 (Tex. 2000) (“Since neither party objected to this instruction [regarding malice], we are bound to review the evidence in light of this definition.”); Osterberg v. Peca, 12 S.W.3d 31, 55 (Tex. 2000) (“[I]t is the court’s charge, not some other unidentified law, that measures the sufficiency of the evidence when the opposing party fails to object to the charge.”). Thus, the safer course is to always object if the questions and instructions are incorrectly submitted, no matter who has the burden of proof.

B. Clear and Convincing Evidence Standard on Appeal.

To be entitled to exemplary damages, a claimant must first establish “by clear and convincing evidence that the harm with respect to which the claimant seeks recovery of exemplary damages results from ... malice; or ... gross negligence.” TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.003(a)(2),(3). But, how is that standard addressed on appeal?

1. Legal Sufficiency.

“[W]henever the standard of proof at trial is elevated, the standard of appellate review must likewise be elevated.”

Sw. Bell Telephone v. Garza, 164 S.W.3d 607, 627 (Tex. 2004). In evaluating the evidence for legal sufficiency, the reviewing court is to consider whether there is enough evidence from which the factfinder could reasonably form a firm belief or conviction that its finding was true. See State v. K.E.W., 315 S.W.3d 16, 20 (Tex. 2010); Columbia Med. Ctr. of Las Colinas, Inc. v. Hogue, 271 S.W.3d 238, 248 (Tex. 2008); Diamond Shamrock Refining Co. v. Hall, 168 S.W.3d 164, 170 (Tex. 2005); City of Keller v. Wilson, 168 S.W.3d 802, 827 (Tex. 2005). Borrowing, as the Texas Supreme Court has, from parental termination cases, “a reviewing court must assume that the factfinder resolved disputed facts in favor of its finding if a reasonable factfinder could do so.” In re J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d 256, 266 (Tex. 2002); see also K.E.W., 315 S.W.3d at 20; Hogue, 271 S.W.3d at 248. At the same time, “a court should disregard all evidence that a reasonable factfinder could have disbelieved or found to have been incredible.” In re J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d at 266. Said another way, a court should disregard evidence contrary to the finding, unless a reasonable factfinder could not. See K.E.W., 315 S.W.3d at 20; Hogue, 271 S.W.3d at 248. Along the way, however, the court must remember that the factfinder remains the sole judge of the credibility and demeanor of the witnesses. See In re J.O.A., 283 S.W.3d 336, 346 (Tex. 2009).

2. Factual Sufficiency.

But, in reviewing the factual sufficiency of the evidence, the standard is slightly different. The court of appeals is to give due deference to the jury’s fact findings, and should not supplant the jury’s judgment with its own. See In re H.R.M., 209 S.W.3d 105, 108 (Tex. 2006). More specifically, the reviewing court is to “give due consideration to evidence that the factfinder could reasonably have found to be clear and convincing.” Id.; Ocean Carriers, Inc. v. Team Ocean Servs., Inc., No. 12-13-00228-CV, 2014 WL 2505586 *2 (Tex. App.—Tyler May 30, 2014, no pet. h.). In other words, the court is to inquire “whether the evidence is such that a factfinder could reasonably form a firm belief or conviction about the truth of the allegations.” In re H.R.M., 209 S.W.3d at 108 (quoting In re C.H., 89 S.W.3d 17, 25 (Tex. 2002). “If, in light of the entire record, the disputed evidence that a factfinder could not have credited in favor of the finding is so significant that a factfinder could not reasonably have formed a firm belief or conviction, then the evidence is factually insufficient.” In re J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d at 266. In applying this standard, “an appellate court’s review must not be so rigorous that the only factfindings that could withstand review are those established beyond a reasonable doubt.” In re H.R.M., 209 S.W.3d at 108 (quoting In re C.H., 89 S.W.3d at 26).

3. Summary Judgment Standard.

This heightened burden of proof should not, however, give rise to heightened review in the summary judgment context. In the defamation context, at least, the Texas Supreme Court has declined to adopt the clear-and-convincing evidence standard for summary judgment purposes, because its application would require that the trial court weigh the evidence. Forbes, Inc. v. Granada Biosciences, Inc., 124 S.W.3d 167, 172 (Tex. 2003); Huckabee v. Time Warner, 19 S.W.3d 413, 421-22 (Tex. 2000); see also Hardy v. Bennefield, 368 S.W.3d 643, 648 (Tex. App.—Tyler 2012, no pet.) (refusing to apply heightened burden in summary judgment context to reformation of deed claim, which requires “clear and convincing evidence” at trial).

C. A Successful Constitutional Challenge Can Only be Remedied by Remittitur.

Under the statutory cap on punitive damages, the court can reduce a judgment to comply with the formula provided by the cap. See, e.g., In re Columbia Med. Ctr. of Las Colinas, 306 S.W.3d 246, 248 (Tex. 2010); Mobil Oil Corp. v. Ellender, 968 S.W.2d 917, 920 (Tex. 1998). Section 41.008 provides a relatively straightforward method of determining the maximum of punitive damages to which a plaintiff is entitled, based on the amount of economic and noneconomic damages awarded by the jury.

But, no such simply formula exists in the case of a constitutional challenge to punitive damages. In those cases, the courts to have addressed the issue uniformly deal with an excessive award by remittitur. See, e.g., Chapa, 212 S.W.3d at 310; Khorshid, Inc. v. Christian, 257 S.W.3d 748, 769 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2008, no pet.); SAS Assocs., Inc. v. Home Marketing Serv., Inc., 168 S.W.3d 296, 304-5 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2005, pet. denied); see also Arkoma Basin Expl. Co. v. FMF Assocs. 1990-A, Ltd., 249 S.W.3d 380, 390 (Tex. 2008) (neither trial court nor appellate courts can order remittitur; they can only suggest remittitur on condition that a new trial will be granted if it is refused). The nature of the constitutional challenge is simply not one that lends itself to the imposition of a certain award of punitive damages.

It is true that a challenge to the constitutionality of an exemplary damage award is a legal question for the court. See Tony Gullo Motors I, L.P. v. Chapa, 212 S.W.3d 299, 307 (Tex. 2006). But, the amount to be awarded is not something that can be decided or imposed upon a party as a matter of law. Even though a court determines that exemplary damages are constitutionally excessive, the court will not impose a specific amount of damages on the plaintiff. Rather, the courts suggest a reduction of damages by remittitur. See, e.g., Chapa, 212 S.W.3d at 310; Khorshid, Inc. v. Christian, 257 S.W.3d 748, 769 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2008, no pet.); SAS Assocs., Inc. v. Home Marketing Serv., Inc., 168 S.W.3d 296, 304-5 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2005, pet. denied).

For example, in Elete v. SEJ Properties, L.P., the Dallas Court of Appeals determined that the exemplary damage award was grossly excessive and that an award of 1.3847 times the actual damages awarded was more appropriate. See Elete v. SEJ Properties, L.P., No. 05-08-00445-CV, 2009 WL 2452942 *7 (Tex. App.—Dallas Aug. 12, 2009, no pet.) (mem. op.). The court of appeals did not, however, simply render a judgment for that amount. Rather, the court suggested a remittitur under the following terms:

In accordance with rule 46.3 of the Texas Rules of Appellate Procedure, if SEJ files with this Court, within fifteen days of the date of this opinion, a remittitur of $90,965 with respect to exemplary damages, the trial court's judgment will be reformed to reflect exemplary damages of $6535 and the judgment will be affirmed as reformed. If the suggested remittitur is not timely filed, the trial court's judgment will be reversed and this case will be remanded to the trial court for a new trial on all issues.

Id. (emphasis added).<sup>14</sup> Similarly, in Duncan v. Prescott, the Amarillo Court of Appeals determined that the punitive damage award of $85,000 was constitutionally excessive, and should be reduced to $10,000. See Duncan v. Prescott, No. 07-12-00330-CV, 2013 WL 5614314 *6 (Tex. App.—Amarillo Oct.

<sup>14</sup> When SEJ did not file a remittitur within the time allotted, the court of appeals, as it predicted, “reverse[d] the trial court's judgment and remand[ed] this cause for a new trial on all issues.” Elete v. SEJ Properties, L.P., No. 05-08-00445-CV, 2009 WL 3087256 *1 (Tex. App.—Dallas Sept. 29, 2009, no pet.) (supp'l mem. op.).

11, 2013, no pet.) (mem. op.). But, the court of appeals did not render a judgment for that amount. Like the Dallas Court of Appeals, the Amarillo court suggested a remittitur under nearly identical terms. See id.

Thus, while it may be true that the threshold issue—whether the jury's punitive damage award is excessive—is one that is a legal question for the court to decide, the ultimate issue—the constitutionally permissible amount of punitive damages—is not one that the trial court or the court of appeals can also determine as a matter of law. Implicit in any constitutional challenge is that the evidence supports some amount of punitive damages, just not the amount the jury awarded. See Hernandez v. Sovereign Cherokee Nation Tejas, 343 S.W.3d 162, 178 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2011, pet. denied) (noting that evidence supported some amount of exemplary damages, even though jury award was excessive, and suggesting remittitur); see also Chapa, 212 S.W.3d at 310 (“On this record, Gullo Motors' conduct merited exemplary damages, but the amount assessed by the court of appeals exceeds constitutional limits.”). But, the law simply does not allow a trial court or court of appeals to impose upon a party the amount of punitive damages it believes the jury should have awarded. That should remain for the jury to decide. TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM. CODE § 41.010(b) (“the determination of whether to award exemplary damages and the amount of exemplary damages to be awarded is within the discretion of the trier of fact.”).

IX. MISCELLANEOUS ISSUES.

A. Insurability of Punitive Damages.

In the context of an employer's workers' compensation policy at least, the Texas Supreme Court has held that Texas public policy does not prohibit coverage for exemplary damages for the employer's gross negligence which causes the employee's death. Fairfield Ins. Co. v. Stephens Martin Paving, LP, 246 S.W.3d 653 (Tex. 2008). The argument against insuring exemplary damages is that it removes the sole purpose of exemplary damages—to punish the wrongdoer. See id. at 662-63. A wrongdoer should not be allowed “to insure himself against punishment.” See id. at 662.

The Texas Supreme Court, however, leaned heavily on Texas's strong public policy in favor of freedom of contract, and if an insurer and insured agree to cover such damages, this policy would allow them to do so. See id. at 665. But, ultimately, the decision to allow coverage was limited to the factual context presented—liability for the conduct of one or more of its employees. “Where other employees and management are not involved in or aware of an employee's wrongful act, the purpose of exemplary damages may be achieved by permitting coverage so as not to penalize many for the wrongful act of one. When a party seeks damages in these circumstances, courts should consider valid arguments that businesses be permitted to insure against them.” Id. at 670.

In that light, the court concluded that:

...the public policy of Texas does not prohibit insurance coverage of exemplary damages for gross negligence in the workers' compensation context. However, without clear legislative intent to generally prohibit or allow the insurance of exemplary damages arising from gross negligence, we decline to make a broad proclamation of public policy here but instead offer some considerations applicable to the analysis in other cases.

Id. The court did, however, recognize that “[e]xtreme circumstances may prompt a different analysis” and, accordingly, “decline[d] to make a broad proclamation of public policy.” Id.

The Fifth Circuit found one of the “extreme circumstances” to exist in American Int’l Specialty Ins. Co. v. Res-Care Inc., 529 F.3d 649 (5th Cir. 2008), and in a horrific case of group home abuse found that the $5 million punitive damage award should be paid by the insured, not the insurer.

We conclude that the circumstances of Wright's injury and death, occurring while living in a facility with documented systemic problems of care, were so extreme that the purposes of punishment and deterrence of conscious indifference outweigh the normally strong public policy of permitting the right to contract between insurer and insured. This case demonstrates the kind of “avoidable conduct that causes injury” where public policy is best served by requiring the insured to bear the costs of punitive damages. The district court did not err by failing to apportion any of the punitive damages to the primary policy.

Id. at 664.

B. Release of Liability.

Finally, one recent case addresses whether a release of claims of ordinary negligence also releases gross negligence claims. Van Voris v. Team Chop Shop, LLC, 402 S.W.3d 915, 925-26 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2013, no pet.). In short, it does not.

Van Voris involved a pre-injury release that released potential claims of negligence, but did not mention gross negligence. In considering whether the release of negligence claims necessarily included gross negligence claims, the Dallas court of appeals first acknowledged that the same public policy that applies to pre-injury releases of negligence claims also applies to gross negligence claims, meaning that a valid release of those claims requires that the release satisfy the same fair notice requirements applicable to a release of negligence claims. Id. at 924 (“we conclude the State’s public policy against pre-injury releases of liability for one’s own negligence applies, at a minimum, equally to gross negligence, and the release signed by Van Voris does not meet that standard.”).

The court then went on to address whether gross negligence was so dependent on the viability of the negligence claim as to nonetheless be effectively waived by the release. Id. at 924-25. In the process, the court concluded that the release, while releasing a claim of negligence, did not also release Van Voris’s right to prove the elements of a negligence claim or actual damages, both of which would be prerequisites to the recovery of actual damages. Id. at 925. And, Van Voris need only prove negligence and actual damages—he need not also recover those damages in order to be entitled to exemplary damages. Id. (citing Nabours v. Longview Sav. & Loan Ass’n, 700 S.W.2d 901, 903 (Tex. 1985)).

Based on Texas’s strong public policy prohibiting pre-injury releases of negligence, heightened concerns (both statutory and common law) involving gross negligence and exemplary damages, distinct elements for proving negligence and gross negligence, and the supreme court’s acknowledgment it is a finding of actual damages (as opposed to entitlement) that is a prerequisite to exemplary damages, we conclude Van Voris did not release his gross negligence claims.

Id. at 926; see also Del Carmen Canas v. Centerpoint Energy Resources Corp., 418 S.W.3d 312, 326-27 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2013, no pet.) (limitation of liability provision in utility’s tariff did not, alone, also bar gross negligence claims).

Table A

Judgments Reversing Punitive Damages
Legally Insufficient Based on "Clear and Convincing" Standard in TX CPRC §41.003

CASE CITATION	SUMMARY OF REVERSAL	RESULT
Cigna Healthcare of Tex. v. Pybas , 127 S.W.3d 400, 417-21 (Tex. App. – Dallas, no pet.), and withdrawn , 2004 WL 585008 (Tex. App. – Dallas Mar. 25, 2004) (mem. op.).	Because no reasonable factfinder could believe employee was acting under corporation's authority, evidence insufficient to show gross negligence for exemplary damages.	Punitive damages set aside/ actual damages affirmed.
Petco Animal Supp., Inc. v. Schuster , 144 S.W.3d 554, 566-67 (Tex. App. – Austin 2004, no pet.).	Evidence legally insufficient to attribute escape and death of pet to gross negligence of company's employees.	Punitive damages set aside/ actual damages affirmed.
TMC Foods L.L.C v. Mason , 2004 WL 918650 *3 (Tex. App. – Beaumont Apr. 29, 2004, no pet.) (mem. op.).	Evidence legally insufficient to prove malice required to award punitive damages for a retaliatory termination claim	Punitive damages set aside/ some of other damages affirmed.
Shear Cuts, Inc. v. Littlejohn , 141 S.W.3d 264, 272-73 (Tex. App. – Fort Worth 2004, no pet.).	Evidence legally insufficient to prove malice required to support exemplary damages in employment discrimination claim.	Punitive damages set aside/ actual damages affirmed.
Dillard Dep't Stores, Inc. v. Silva , 148 S.W.3d 370, 372-74 (Tex. 2004)	Evidence not clear and convincing to show malice for punitive damages on false imprisonment claim.	Punitive damages set aside/ other damages affirmed.
Sw. Bell Tel. Co. v. Garza , 164 S.W.3d 607, 628-29 (Tex. 2004).	Evidence was legally insufficient to prove the telephone company violated the Anti-Retaliation Law with actual malice against a former employee.	Punitive damages set aside/ actual damages affirmed.
Fraze v. Pfleider , 2005 WL 1243091 *3-4 (Tex. App. – Beaumont May 26, 2005, no pet.)(mem.op.).	Jury was not instructed on "clear and convincing" standard. Additionally, jury awarded punitive damages based on breach of contract - which does not warrant punitives - rather than fraud claim at issue.	New trial on all claims.
Clayton v. Wisener , 190 S.W.3d 685, 698-70 (Tex. App. – Tyler 2005, pet. denied).	Evidence was not clear and convincing to show malice in doctor's invasion of privacy and IIED.	Punitive damages set aside/ part of other damages affirmed.
Qwest Int'l Commc'ns, Inc. v. AT &amp; T Corp. , 167 S.W.3d 324, 326-27 (Tex. 2005).	Evidence could show negligence but was legally insufficient to show Qwest's malice in cutting AT&T's fiber optic cables.	Punitive damages set aside/ other damages affirmed.

Table A

Dillard Dep't Stores, Inc. v. Hecht , 225 S.W.3d 109, 116-18 (Tex. App. – El Paso 2005, pet. denied).	Evidence did not rise to the level of "clear and convincing" to show malice in employment discrimination claim.	Punitive damages set aside/ other damages affirmed.
Celanese Ltd. v. Skrabanek , 2005 WL 2785217 *3-5 (Tex. App. – Corpus Christi Oct. 27, 2005, no pet.) (mem. op.).	Evidence was not clear and convincing to show malice in wrongful termination suit.	Punitive damages set aside/ other damages affirmed.
Agrium U.S., Inc. v. Clark , 179 S.W.3d 765, 766, 769-70 (Tex. App. – Amarillo 2005, pet. denied).	Evidence not clear and convincing that employer's gross negligence caused deceased's injuries. So, by the same reason punitive damages were reversed, underlying claim was denied.	Judgment reversed/ all recovery denied.
Kinder Morgan N. Tex. Pipeline, L.P. v. Justiss , 202 S.W.3d 427, 446-49 (Tex. App. – Texarkana 2006, no pet.).	Evidence of extreme risk was insufficient to prove pipeline constructor acted with conscious indifference to warrant punitive award to landowner whose property was damaged.	Punitive damages set aside/ other damages affirmed, conditional on remittitur in part.
West Telemarketing Corp. Outbound v. McClure , 225 S.W.3d 658, 672-73 (Tex. App. – El Paso 2006, pet. granted, judgment vacated w.r.m.).	Evidence legally insufficient to prove malice required to support exemplary damages in employment discrimination case.	Punitive damages set aside/ other damages affirmed.
Phillips v. Bramlett , 258 S.W.3d 158, 182 (Tex. App. – Amarillo 2007), rev'd on other grounds , 288 S.W.3d 876 (Tex. 2009).	Evidence of gross negligence in medical malpractice suit was not clear and convincing.	Punitive damages set aside/remittitur ordered for portion of other damages/ part of other damages affirmed.
Telecheck Servs., Inc. v. Elkins , 226 S.W.3d 731, 733-34 (Tex. App. – Dallas 2007, no pet.).	Evidence was not clear and convincing as to what degree of risk Telecheck's wrong information would cause declined checks. Because malice, gross negligence, negligence, and defamation depended on that evidence, insufficiency for punitive damages meant insufficiency for other issues as well.	Punitive damages set aside/remanded for new trial on other issues.
BIC Pen Corp. v. Carter , 346 S.W.3d 569, 582-83 (Tex. App. – Corpus Christi), rev'd on other grounds , 251 S.W.3d 500 (Tex. 2008).	Evidence was not clear and convincing to show malice in manufacture and design of lighter plaintiff alleged was defective.	Punitive damages set aside/ actual damages affirmed.

Table A

The Shed, L.L.C. v. Edom Wash 'N Dry, L.L.C. , 2009 WL 692609 *8-9 (Tex. App. – Tyler Mar. 18, 2009, pet. denied) (mem. op.).	Evidence was not clear and convincing that business maliciously blocked easement, intending to cause substantial injury to the restricted business.	Punitive damages set aside and, because they were unsegregated, related attorneys fees reversed. Other damages affirmed.
Yeckell v. Abbott , 2009 WL 1563587, at *9-11 (Tex. App. – Austin June 4, 2009, pet. denied) (mem. op.).	Evidence was not clear and convincing that president of Foundation acted with malice in committing alleged fraud.	Punitive damages set aside/other damages affirmed.
In re Estate of Preston , 346 S.W.3d 137 (Tex. App. – Fort Worth 2011, no pet.).	Evidence was not clear and convincing that siblings intended to benefit from the alleged breach of fiduciary duty to fellow beneficiaries, so it did not show malice, fraud, or gross negligence to support punitive damages.	Punitive damages set aside/part of other damages affirmed.
U-Haul Int'l, Inc. v. Waldrip , 380 S.W.3d 118, 140 (Tex. 2012).	Evidence legally insufficient to establish company's gross negligence in hiring employee to certify safety of truck alleged to have caused customer's injuries.	Punitive damages set aside/new trial ordered on ordinary negligence claims.
Alamo Country Club Owners Ass'n v. Shelton , 2012 WL 3792753 *18 (Tex. App. – Corpus Christi Aug. 31, 2012, no pet.) (mem. op.).	Evidence did not rise to the level of "clear and convincing" to show subdivision acted with malice in falsely imprisoning landowner they thought to be trespassing.	Punitive damages set aside/other damages affirmed.
Bank of Am., N.A. v. Barth , 2013 WL 5676024 *14-15 (Tex. App. – Corpus Christi Oct. 17, 2013, no pet.) (mem. op.).	Jury was not instructed that punitive damages may only be awarded if fraud was proven by "clear and convincing" evidence. (In fact, no standard was instructed)	Punitive damages set aside/actual damages affirmed.
Cowboys Concert Hall-Arlington, Inc. v. Jones , 2014 WL 1713472 *13-15 (Tex. App. – Fort Worth May 1, 2014, no pet. h.) (mem. op.).	Evidence was not clear and convincing that bouncer's actions involved the extreme degree of risk required for gross negligence claim.	Punitive damages set aside/other damages modified or affirmed.

Table B

Judgments Reversing or Modifying Punitive Damages
Based on Excessive or Unjust Amount Awarded

Key: (1) Violates Constitutional Due Process (Kraus / Gore factors) (2) Statutory Cap

FULL CASE CITATION	REASON	SUMMARY EXPLANATION	RESULT
Signal Peak Enters. of Tex., Inc. v. Bettina Invs., Inc. , 183 S.W.3d 915, 926, 928-29 (Tex. App. – Dallas 2004, no pet.).	(2)	Because jury did not award noneconomic damages, award could only be twice economic damages. Here, economic damages totalled $350,000, so that amount must be capped at $700,000-not the $1 million the jury awarded.	Punitive damages award reformed. Judgment otherwise affirmed.
Tex. Moto-Plex, Inc. v. Phelps , 2006 WL 246520 (Tex. App. – Eastland Feb. 2 2006, no pet.) (mem. op.).	(1)	The $75,000 awarded to one of plaintiffs for defendant's gross negligence was 75 times actual damages (of $1000). Court said, absent reprehensible conduct, award violated due process. Defendant requested remittitur to $9000, and court agreed.	Remittitur granted for punitive damages.
Tony Gullo Motors I, L.P. v. Chapa , 212 S.W.3d 299, 306-11 (Tex. 2006).	(2)	Court determined $125,000 award for just over $7000 economic damages exceeded constitutional limits.	Remanded to court of appeals to determine remittitur (within appellate courts' jurisdiction, not supreme court).
Huynh v. Phung , 2007 WL 495023 *12-14 (Tex. App. – Houston [1st Dist.] Feb. 16, 2007, no pet.) (mem. op.).	(1)	Amount awarded ($200,000) was 10 times actual damages ($20,000). Court said disparity between award and harm was too great and violated due process. Remittitur of $100,000 (5 times actual damages) suggested.	Remittitur granted for punitive damages.
Tranum v. Broadway , 283 S.W.3d 403 (Tex. App. – Waco 2008, pet. denied).	(2)	No economic damages were awarded, so punitive damages must be limited to $325,000 in noneconomic damages by statute.	Judgment modified, reducing punitive damages from $750,000 to $350,000.
Khorshid, Inc. v. Christian , 257 S.W.3d 748, 766-79 (Tex. App. – Dallas 2008, no pet.).	(1)	After analyzing amount by Kraus factors, harm was not extreme and $200,000 was excessive. Award of $200,000 violated constitutional due process when compared to $3,000 compensatory damages awarded.	Court suggested remittitur to $12,000 (4 times compensatory damages).

Table B

Elete v. SEJ Props. , 2009 WL 2452942 *5-7 (Tex. App.—Dallas Sept. 29 2009, no pet.) (mem. op.).	(1)	Jury initially awarded $70,410 actual damages and $97,500 punitive damages. After remittitur, actual damages were reduced to $4719, punitives were not reduced, and left the ratio nearly 21:1 (violated constitutional due process). Court of appeals suggested remittitur reducing punitives to $6536, or 1.3847:1 ratio.	Remittitur granted for punitive damages.
Bennett v. Reynolds , 315 S.W.3d 867, 873-83 (Tex. 2010).	(1)	Appellant acquitted of third-degree felony (cattle theft) but civil jury found him liable for same. No comparable civil cases; but criminal fine possible was $10,000, so $1.25 million out of all proportion. Conduct was not reprehensible enough to warrant award under constitutional analysis. Punitive damages : actual damages of just over $5000 was excessive ratio.	Remanded to court of appeals to determine remittitur (within appellate courts' jurisdiction, not supreme court).
Duncan v. Prescott , 2013 WL 5614314 *3-6 (Tex. App.—Amarillo Oct. 11, 2013, no pet.) (mem. op.).	(1)	Defendant was convicted of assault. Plaintiff sought medical expenses. Jury awarded punitive damages of $85,000 and $1,650 in actual damages. Court said this ratio of 51.5:1 was constitutionally excessive.	Remittitur granted reducing award to $10,000 (comparable to fine for criminal offense).